

key to the conference has been holding with British statesmen, and the address as it was delivered today was interpreted in American quarters as confirming the previous intimations that these conferences had been satisfactory from the President's standpoint.

At the outset of his address, President Wilson declared he did not fancy that the welcome of Paris and London to him was purely personal, but rather that the voices of the people were expressing not only emotions of gratification that the fighting had ceased, but also their conception that the peace to be made must guarantee that the war could not be repeated.

"It now rests upon others to see that those lives were not lost in vain," the President added.

Receives Great Demonstration.
The President concluded his address amid a great demonstration, and then proceeded to the luncheon at the Mansion House with the Lord Mayor.

As the President left the guild hall after his address the crowd in the yard took up the theme that had been echoing within the building. The President, with Mrs. Wilson, entered their carriage and as they drove off through the boisterous and hat and handkerchief waving throngs, someone proclaimed: "Three cheers for Wilson." They were given with such a will that the President smiled delightedly, and rose and bowed again and again.

Lighter Speech at Luncheon.
The program of the President House luncheon was comparatively informal except for the toasts. When the aged master of ceremonies, in city livery and standing behind the Lord Mayor's chair, proclaimed: "Your Royal Highness, addressing the Duke of Connaught, my lords, your excellencies, ladies and gentlemen, I pray silence for the President of the United States," there was a burst of hearty, although decorous, enthusiasm with hand clapping, waving of napkins and beating of tables.

The President's speech was in a lighter vein with a personal touch. He described himself not as a cold talking machine, but with something of Scotch caution, was aptly by a liking for insouciance which could have no other than Celtic origin. His explanation of the breaking of precedent in coming to Europe because he thought consultation was a duty above all others, was aptly, as was his quotation from Charles Lamb that one could not hate a man whom he knew. The President spoke without a touch of emotion or hesitation. His only gesture was when he spoke of the "great grief which had been lifted from the world."

The oldest observer in the Guild Hall today declared no reception ever accorded to any dignitary there approached in spontaneity and enthusiasm that which greeted the President's appearance and the address which followed.

The procession from Buckingham Palace to the Guild Hall was through a crowd that cheered continuously. The distinguished Government and other officials received by the Lord Mayor before the President's arrival included Premier Lloyd George, Field Marshal Haig, Foreign Secretary Balfour, Admiral Sims, former Premier Asquith, Andrew Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the ambassadors of the principal allied Governments.

Soldiers in Balconies.
The President early in the day went to the American embassy and received the delegations of a number of societies and leagues, some of which presented memorials and resolutions welcoming him to London. When he arrived from Buckingham Palace the windows and balconies of the block in which the embassy stands were all occupied by American naval and military officers and soldiers and sailors.

The crowds cheered as the President entered the building. Passing between the lines of a marine guard of honor, the President went to the second floor and received the delegations. It was simply a case of handshaking in most cases. Some of the delegations presented resolutions and memorials, and there was quite a pile of these when the delegations passed on.

Arthur Henderson and Charles William Bowdman, representing the joint committee of the Labor party executives and the parliamentary committee of the Trades Union Congress, presented an address on behalf of the British labor movement. President Wilson said he would do all in his power to carry out the ideals set forth in the address.

Importance of Religion.
The President today received a large delegation from the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches. In addressing the dele-

King George's Speech at Banquet to Wilson, and the President's Reply

LONDON, Dec. 27.

In his speech at the state banquet to President Wilson at Buckingham Palace last night, King George said:

"This is an historic moment and your visit marks an historic epoch. Nearly 150 years have passed since your republic began its independent life and now, for the first time, a President of the United States is our guest in England."

"We welcome you to the country where stand the homes of those from whom sprang Washington and Lincoln. We welcome you for yourself, as one whose insight, calmness and dignity in the discharge of his high duties, we have watched with admiration. We see in you the happy union of the gifts of a scholar with those of a statesman. You came from a studious, academic quiet into the full stream of an arduous public life and your deliverances have combined breadth of view and grasp of world problems, with the mastery of a lofty diction recalling that of your great orators of the past and of our own."

Common Ideal of Freedom.
"You come as the official head and spokesman of a mighty commonwealth bound to us by the closest ties. Its people speak the tongue of Shakespeare and its literature is yours, as yours is also ours, and men of letters in both countries have joined in maintaining its incomparable glories."

"To you, not less than to us, belong the memories of our national heroes from King Alfred down to the days of Philip Sidney and Drake, of Raleigh and Blake and Hampden, and the days when the political life of the English nation in America was just beginning. You share with us the traditions of free self-government as old as the Magna Charta."

"We recognize the bond of still deeper significance in the common ideals which our people cherish. First among these ideals you value and we value, freedom and peace. Privileged as we have been to be the exponents and the examples in national life of the principles of popular self-government based upon equal laws, it now falls to both of us alike to see how these principles can be applied beyond our own borders for the good of the world."

Praises Wilson's Coming.
"It was love of liberty, respect for law, good faith and the sacred rights of humanity that brought you to the Old World to help in saving it from the dangers that were threatening around and that arrayed those soldier citizens of yours, whose gallantry we have admired, side by side with ours in the war."

"You have now come to help in building up new states amid the ruins of those that the war has shattered and in laying the solid foundations of a settlement that may stand firm because it will rest upon the consent of the emancipated nationalities. You have eloquently expressed the hope of the American people as it is our hope, that some plan may be devised to attain the end you have done so much to promote by the risk of future wars may, if possible, be averted, relieving the nations of the intolerable burden which fear of war has laid upon them."

"The British nation wishes all success to the deliberations on which you and we and the great free nations allied with us are now to enter, moved by disinterested good will and a sense of duty commensurable with the power which we hold as a solemn trust."

Thanks U. S. Soldiers.
"The American and British peoples have been brothers in arms and their arms have been crowned with victory. We thank with all our hearts your valiant soldiers and sailors for their service to the world."

"May the same brotherly spirit inspire and guide our united efforts to secure for the world the blessings of an ordered freedom and an enduring peace."

"In asking you to join with me in drinking to the health of the President I wish to say with what pleasure we welcome Mr. Wilson to this country."

"I drink to the health of the President of the United States and Mrs. Wilson, and to the happiness and prosperity of the great American nation."

President's Reply to King.
Replying to the King's address, President Wilson said:

"I am deeply complimented by the gracious words which you have uttered. The welcome which you have given me and Mrs. Wilson has been so warm, so natural, so evidently from the heart, that we have been more touched by it, and I believe that I correctly interpret that welcome as embodying not only your own generous spirit toward us personally, but also as expressing yourself and the great nation over which you preside that same feeling for my people, for the people of the United States."

"For you and I, sir—I temporarily embody the spirit of two great nations, and whatever strength I possess, is only so long and so far as I express the spirit and purpose of the American people."

"Every influence that the American people have over the affairs of the world is measured by their sympathy with the aspirations of free men everywhere."

"Right" and "Justice."
"America does love freedom, and I believe that she loves freedom unselfishly. But if she does not, she will not and cannot help the influence to which she is justly aspirant."

"I have had the privilege, sir, of conferring with the leaders of your own Government and with the spokesmen of the Governments of France and of Italy, and I am glad to say that I have the same conceptions that they have of the significance and scope of the duty on which we have met."

"We have used great words; all of us have used the great words 'right' and 'justice,' and the right is whether we understand these words and how they are to be applied to the particular settlements which must conclude this war."

New Sense of Brotherhood.
"Yet, after I have uttered the word 'justice,' it comes into my mind that it would take more courage to resist the great moral tide now running in the world than to yield to it, than to obey it."

"There is a great tide running in the hearts of men. The hearts of men have never been so singularly in unison before. Men have never before been so conscious of their brotherhood. Men have never before realized how little difference there is between right and justice in one latitude and in another, under one sovereignty and under another."

"And it will be our high privilege, I believe, sir, not only to apply the word 'justice' to the world to the particular settlements which we shall attempt, but also to organize the moral force of the world to preserve those settlements, to steady the forces of mankind and to make the right and the justice to which great nations like our own have devoted themselves the predominant and controlling force of the world."

Important Tasks Ahead.
"In knowing that this is the era that we have come on. Nothing less than this would have justified me in leaving the important tasks which fall upon me upon the other side of the sea—nothing but the consciousness that nothing else compares with this in dignity and importance."

"Therefore, it is the more delightful to find myself in the company of a body of men united in the ideal of the justice to which I am privileged to unite my thoughts with yours in carrying forward these standards which we are so proud to hold so high and to defend."

Said to Have Rebuked Stinger.
Breath of discipline is the charge based on the assertion that after the board, in February last, had made William Stinger a Lieutenant and placed him in full charge of the gambling squad, subject only to the orders of the board, Young called Stinger before him and rebuked him for investigating gambling places without interference from himself."

Poker Game Mentioned.
C. Orrick Bishop, Judge Advocate of the Police Department, who drew up the charges, today outlined to a Post-Dispatch reporter some of the information on which the charges against Young were based.

It is not specifically included in the charges but it is the purpose of the board to bring out testimony on this information at the trial.

He cited an instance in which a policeman in the Dayton Street District, while passing a house on Lucas avenue, saw several automobiles at the curb. He entered the house and found "Iank" Weeks dealing a poker game. Information in the hands of the police department that when the policeman insisted on stopping the game Weeks threatened to have him "sent to the sticks."

The policeman broke up the game, it is said, and the next day he was transferred to another district by Young.

Bishop also said the data on which the charges were based contained information that Young was so unduly under the influence of Weeks that he permitted Weeks to cause him to make transfers, donations and discharges of policemen to satisfy Weeks' personal grudges.

As to lack of co-operation with other police officers, Bishop said, there would be evidence to show that Young had reduced Gilgaspay's status to that of a nightwatchman.

Mayor Kiel, who is ex-officio a member of the Police Board, said he would sit on the board at the trial and would go to the sessions "with an open mind." He was long in the hall, which is 200 feet long by 75 feet wide, was approached by the guests through a state hall-way approximately a block long, richly furnished and decorated with paintings and porcelains. The banquet hall has a throne at one end. The main table was arranged so that the backs of President Wilson and King George were toward the throne.

128 Candles Used.
The permanent decorations seemed strikingly simple when compared with the regal table. The only art on the walls was one Gobelin tapestry. On each side six cut-glass chandeliers hung from the extremely high ceiling, but for the banquet 128 candles which were pink shades were used. Other light was obtained from fancy wall fixtures.

The general body of the guests preceded the royal family and the president and the ambassadorial guests to the banquet. They rose and remained standing while the main guests and the hosts entered in procession. Heading the procession was the Lord Chamberlain and the Lord Steward and other officials in state regalia. The guard in red Elizabethan costumes and with halberds were in attendance.

Mrs. Wilson Dressed in Black.
An authorized description of the gown worn at the banquet says that Queen Mary's costume was an evening robe of gold cloth, cut very low, with the corsage trimmed with brilliant. Among the ornaments worn were Indian and South African diamonds which were various times had been presented to the sovereign.

Mrs. Wilson's gown is described as a black velvet evening gown of which the only, or at least the most noticeable ornament was a very fine collar of brooch.

The military and naval officers were in service uniforms and wore their swords. The Ambassadors were in full ambassadorial uniform. President Wilson and Ambassador Davis wore formal American evening clothes. The British civilian guests wore court dress and the insignia of many orders.

YOUNG ACCUSED OF PERMITTING WEEKS TO INFLUENCE HIM

at night, when he is in charge of the department.

Young is charged with failing to exercise proper supervision over subordinate officers and police property, especially with reference to the Dayton Street District, where, it is asserted, Capt. Pickel failed to maintain discipline and to take proper care of the physical property of the department.

Hindenburg Gives His Views of the Armistice

Greener observed, though some of us have not always liked the militia idea.

"There would be an opportunity for universal service, but the training would be shorter and only for war purposes. All parade drills and other frills will be done away with, but we would have enough men for war."

Hindenburg's Big Victory.
Speaking of Marshal von Hindenburg, von Groener said:

"The Marshal's patriotism rose above his personal inclinations when he consented to serve the present Government. His conduct constitutes a great victory over himself."

He added: "I think it is the greatest victory he has ever won."

The General Staff officers informed me how they are going to Germany was being carried out without the least disturbance anywhere, "except in one or two places where the soldiers have objected to the display of red flags and have torn them down."

I gathered the impression, however, that the vast majority of the soldiers are satisfied with the revolution, though they are much perturbed as to how they are going to be once they have been mustered out of the army.

"If the soldiers starve, Bolshevism is inevitable," one officer exclaimed bitterly. Among these militarists there was a strong feeling that the old regime really meant to bring about parliamentary rule and was prevented only by the sailors' revolt at Kiel, which in turn produced the overthrow of the old order."

May Autocracy Be Ended.
German officers generally affect to believe that the Kaiser can never come back and that autocracy is done for in this country forever.

Whether their attitude is altogether sincere is another question. There is no doubt, however, of their sincerity when they say the German army is done for as a fighting machine.

"We cannot even police our own country as things stand now," Maj. von Jahreis, Marshal Hindenburg's chief adjutant, observed. The Maj. hinted at the belief that Russian Bolshevism influences and money had much to do with the revolutionary movement here, particularly in Berlin.

The status of officers, I learned, differed between grain and the field armies and with the troops at home. In the field the officers' right to command is unaltered and the Soldiers' Council in each regiment merely deals with the personal well-being of the men.

In the home garrisons, however, the councils wield supreme authority and their representatives pass on practically every order that is issued. From what I have heard, the bulk of the officers will leave the service as soon as demobilization is over.

No Charges Against Phillips.
No charges were filed against Sgt. Phillips, who also was suspended Oct. 18, and his friends believe that he will be reinstated.

Bishop said several days ago that he had gone thoroughly into the complaint that Phillips, as night clerk at the Dayton Street station, had been favoring certain professional bondsmen, but had failed to find any substantiation of the complaint.

Silverman's Statement.
Morris Silverman, a Dayton Street District Sergeant, alleged by the board to have resigned Oct. 13, but who asserts that he did not resign, today said he had informed his attorney that during a recent farce he stopped a party of men who he thought to enter Frances Cole's house.

One of them, he said, handed him the business card of Funsten Bros. & Co., of which Police Commissioner Fouke is president, and told him that they were party of fur buyers. He refused to permit them to enter, he said, and the Cole woman appeared at the door and threatened to "make it hot" for him.

Fouke refused to see a reporter at his home. He sent word that he had nothing to say about Silverman's statement.

Dirty Station Mentioned.
The recent indifference and inefficiency charge is the one on which Oct. 18 and for several months prior to that time he permitted the Dayton Street Police Station to lapse into a condition of bad order and uncleanliness. It is alleged that the Captain's office, the sergeant's assembly room and cellar became dirty and filthy and were unwashed and unscrubbed for a long time, the cellar during that period being the depository of rubbish and ashes, the windows dirty and the Sergeant's locker room and wash room unclean. Various parts of the station, it is charged, remained without cleaning, painting and whitening.

In this connection it also is alleged that Capt. Pickel neglected to see that record books of the station were properly assorted and kept in rotation and properly labeled and numbered. This, the charge asserts, made it difficult to find old records needed for reference. It also is asserted that Pickel failed to maintain discipline and effective work among the clerks and janitors of the office and that he maintained no effective discipline among his subordinate policemen, but permitted them to become lax and indifferent.

Disorderly Houses.
That fourth count in the charges is the fourth failed to keep his district free of disorderly resorts and hotels in July, August, September and October, 1918, and failed to report the existence of these resorts to the Chief, but on the contrary from time to time reported there were no such places in his district.

The charge lists 15 disorderly houses and one hotel as having been operated in the district with Pickel's knowledge.

Witnesses for the Board of Police Commissioners, named in the Pickel charges are the women mentioned. Wren, Patrolman J. L. Barton, Patrolman J. Carroll and Patrolman Joseph W. Vollmer.

Statement by Atkinson.
Attorney Atkinson, in a formal statement, said:

"On Oct. 18, when Capt. Pickel and those who were suspended, the Police Board, through its present Commissioner Mansur, issued the following statement:

"The action taken by the Board of Police Commissioners this afternoon is based upon information we have and that furnished us by the United States Government officials, the nature of which is such that no details can be given at this time."

"The Board of Police Commissioners, by issuing the above statement, attempted to make the public believe that Capt. Hess and Pickel had done something wrong in connection with the United States Government. The charges filed and served on yesterday afternoon do not do so. They do not disclose or bear out in any way the above statement by the commissioners. In other words, it is apparent now to the public that the commissioners had no information on which to base their charges supporting their original suspension. The charges now contained have no reference to that statement and are merely frivolous, and I might say, trumped up charges filed for the purpose of attempting to sustain the oppressive and unheeded action by the Board of Police Commissioners on Oct. 11."

Will Be Ready for Trial.
"After a brief conference with the two captains in my office this morning, it is my opinion that they will be ready to go to trial Monday morning at 10 o'clock. There is no doubt, however, of their sincerity when they say the German army is done for as a fighting machine."

"We cannot even police our own country as things stand now," Maj. von Jahreis, Marshal Hindenburg's chief adjutant, observed. The Maj. hinted at the belief that Russian Bolshevism influences and money had much to do with the revolutionary movement here, particularly in Berlin.

The third count is that in April, 1917, Hess, in his office at the La-cade avenue station, had Mary O'Neill secured on his lap and was discovered by James L. Wren, a clerk of the station.

Marine, Here to Visit Bride, Wears the French Regimental Decoration

Corp. James Leo McCormick.

Corp. James Leo McCormick, of Sixth Regiment, Was Shot Through the Lung at Soissons and Lay for Three Hours in Wheat Field.

Corp. James Leo McCormick of the Eighty-fourth Company, Sixth Regiment of Marines, who was shot in the right lung at Soissons, July 19, is home on a Christmas furlough and is wearing over his left shoulder the green and red fourragere given to the regiment when it was awarded the French Croix de Guerre for gallantry in action.

McCormick's regiment was cited six times by the French for heroism and he has received word that the members have been awarded the Legion of Honor decoration, which is a fourragere of red braid, and that it will be sent to him soon.

None of the French Blue Devils, who were here last May, had the fourragere of the Legion of Honor. But the members of the French Foreign Legion, which was here in September, wore it over their left shoulder.

It is the highest regimental honor the French Government can bestow and it showed that the Legion had been cited at least six times for heroism in battle. As a matter of fact, the French Foreign Legion had been cited 12 times and the Government is considering the introduction of an entirely new award to give distinction to the Legion's unique gallantry.

Bridgroom When He Left.
McCormick is 23 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McCormick, 6142 Pershing avenue. He was a student at St. Louis University prior to enlisting, and left St. Louis June 14, 1917, with the St. Louis unit of Marines.

He was married June 13 to Miss Mary Blanche Waugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Waugh, 5842 Pershing avenue, and was a member of the French Foreign Legion when he was shot through the lung at Soissons, July 19, 1918.

He was shot through the lung at Soissons, July 19, 1918, and lay for three hours in a wheat field under a blazing July sun, wondering how soon he was going to die and alternately calling for help and water. It was at Chateau-Thierry and Belleau Wood that his regiment was the highest honors the French Government can award, but it was later that he received the wound which invalidated him to the United States.

"It wasn't funny out in that wheat field the day I was hit," McCormick said, "but now that I am safely through it I can laugh when I think of my predicament. There I was, close enough to my comrades to hear them talking, and I couldn't call loudly enough to make them hear me. They had dug in not more than twenty yards away, but they might as well have been a mile distant for all the good it did me."

making no effort to shell the left side and our commander figured Fritz was leaving this open for his raiding party to advance. He was, and we met them. It was fierce fighting for a time, but presently it ceased. Next morning two dead Germans, one a junior officer, were seen in the wire of our dummy trench.

Raiding Specialists.
"The French Intelligence Office told us later there were 41 new graves on the German side and judging from the blood along the ground near the wire, there must have been many German wounded. We learned that this bunch was Hindenburg's 'traveling circus,' seasoned fighters used only for trench raids. "Later we were sent to the British front northwest of Paris and on May 29 were attending a celebration at General Headquarters when we received orders to move to Chateau-Thierry, where the Germans were badly hammering the French.

"It was when we reached Maux that we first realized the horrors of war. There we found the roads clogged with refugees and I believe it was this sight—mothers wheeling their babes in every sort of vehicle available, old men tottering along to escape the huns, girls with frightened faces and men physically unfit for military service, leaving all their worldly possessions behind in their mad flight—that helped us hold the line in the following days.

In the Real Fighting.
"June 2 at 2 p. m. we got orders to move and, in wave formation we went into a wheat field, where we dug in. June 3 we were again ordered forward at 5 p. m. The little town of Bourches, to the right of Belleau Wood, was our objective. We had to cut across the wheat field, with the German artillery and machine guns apparently centered on that spot. Running forward 50 yards we would drop down for a few seconds to get our wind and then repeat the performance. But when we got within 300 yards of our objective we could go no further. The rain of lead was simply too much and, to save lives, we were ordered to dig in.

"Our trench equipment had been cast aside as too heavy to carry in battle. But if ever a bunch of soldiers dug in with mess kits, bayonets and bare hands were that bunch. "I was ordered by my Lieutenant to crawl forward and see when the first wave went forward again," he said. "As I edged along toward them something knocked my thumb and forefinger on my right hand together. It felt like a cloud of dirt and looking down I saw a machine gun bullet which was evidently spent when it hit me. But I've thought since that no amount of explaining would have made any one believe I had not shot myself if that bullet had hurt me, especially on my right hand."

Made the Germans Fight.
Out of his company of 250 men, only 50 escaped death or wounds. Many of the casualties, he believes, are due to the fact that the Americans taught the Germans how to fight.

"At first they used to come running up to us yelling 'Kamerad,' he said, 'but we were afraid of treachery and would not let them surrender. They began to realize it was a fight to the death and they fought like cornered rats, getting more of us than they would have had we been easier with them."

M'KINLEY LINE FARE ACROSS BRIDGE DOUBLED
Interstate Commerce Commission Establishes Three-Cent Fare Zones for Suburban Traffic.

An increase in fare on the McKinley car lines between St. Louis and East Side towns has been authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the company was notified yesterday. It is understood that the new fare will be 10 cents from the station at Twelfth street and Lucas avenue to Venice, instead of 5 cents, as at present. The new fare will become effective the last of January.

While details have not been received, it is said that the arrangement makes three zones by which 5 cents is charged between the St. Louis station and the west end of the bridge; 5 cents over the bridge to Venice; and 5 cents from Venice to Granite City.

The fare from Venice to Granite City is unchanged. It is probable that commutation books from St. Louis to Granite City will sell at 9 cents a ticket.

ANGIER B. DUKE AND WIFE LIVING APART

"Tobacco King," Heir to $50,000,000, Wedded Cordelia Biddle of Philadelphia in 1915.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Angier B. Duke, son of Benjamin B. Duke, the "Tobacco King," is parted from his 20-year-old wife, who was Miss Cordelia Biddle of Philadelphia. They separated after three and a half years of married life. This admission is made by Maj. A. J. Drexel Biddle, father of Mrs. Duke.

"It is most unfortunate, but true," said Maj. Biddle in Philadelphia to a reporter. "I do not care to discuss the matter further than to say that Cordelia and her husband are living apart."

From the attorney for the Drexel estate, the reporter learned that no legal action has been begun. "All I can say is that Mrs. Duke and her two babies are living with her mother at a New York hotel," Maj. Biddle said.

Their wedding, which took place in Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia, April 28, 1915, was one of the greatest social events of the season. Since Revolutionary days, in which the Biddles made history, members of the Drexel-Biddle family of Philadelphia have occupied a pedestal in Philadelphia society.

Angier Duke, heir to the $50,000,000 Duke tobacco fortune and possessing $10,000,000 in his own right, had been sought after by many ambitious American mothers. Miss Biddle was 18 years old and just graduated from school when she met him. It was planned by the Biddle family to send Cordelia abroad to Paris for two more years. But she met Duke before her debutante tea and at once a most ardent attachment sprang up between them. Cordelia, says Quaker City gossip, put her foot down in her own determined way and decided that she would not go to Paris, but would come out in society at once.

Mrs. Biddle then brought Cordelia officially into society at the largest debutante tea ever held in Philadelphia. The entire upper floor of the Bellevue-Stratford was taken for the party, which 3000 persons attended. Following that, Mrs. Biddle took her daughter to Palm Beach. It was hinted that this was to escape the ardent love-making of Duke. He was not to be shaken off, however, and also went to Palm Beach.

Upon the return of the Biddles to Philadelphia about the first of March, 1915, the engagement was announced.

FLIES FROM SCOTT FIELD TO INDIANAPOLIS IN SNOW IN 2 HOURS
Air Route Mapper Completes 230-Mile Trip in Storm; Second Machine Turned Back.

Driving through the snow virtually the entire 230 miles of one of two army airplanes left Scott Field yesterday at 1:15 p. m., reached Indianapolis after two hours. The second machine turned back after it encountered snow shortly after ascending and relanding at Scott Field.

Lieut. D. M. Hill, who piloted the machine that reached Indianapolis, could not find the Speedway in the snow and landed instead at the Indiana State Fair Grounds.

His plane is one of three which are flying from Houston, Tex., to battle. But if ever a bunch of soldiers dug in with mess kits, bayonets and bare hands were that bunch.

"I was ordered by my Lieutenant to crawl forward and see when the first wave went forward again," he said. ## HOOVER REFUSES TO MEET WITH GERMAN FOOD OFFICIALS

"Go to Hell" His Message for High Figures in German Administration in Belgium.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Food Administrator Hoover has refused in emphatic terms to discuss German food conditions with Baron von der Lancken and Dr. Rieth, who sought a meeting with the Food Administrator.

A message from Paris said these two German officials, who were prominent in the German administration of Belgium, were directed to Walter Lyman Brown, director of the Commission for Relief in Belgium in Rotterdam, that they had been appointed by the German Government to negotiate with Hoover for food supplies and that they desired Hoover to advise them when and where he would meet them.

In answer to the request for a conference, Hoover sent this message: "You can describe two and a half years of arrogance toward ourselves and cruelty to the Belgians in any language you may select, and tell the pair personally to go to hell, with my compliments. If I do have to deal with Germans, it will not be with that pair."

MRS. LUCIE M. VALLE DIES

Descendant of St. Louis Settler Passes Away at Age of 83.

Mrs. Lucie M. Valle, member of a family of early French settlers, died early today, at the age of 83 years, at her home, 3811 Flora boulevard. Mrs. Valle was the widow of John Baptist Valle, founder of a new branch of the iron firm of Chouteau, Harrison & Valle. Before her marriage she was Miss Lucile Desloge. She was a sister of Firmin Desloge, head of the Desloge Lead Co., of Desloge, Mo., and a sister of John W. Cobb. She is survived by two daughters and a son: Mrs. John James of Webster Groves; Mrs. R. E. M. Bain, 3801 Flora boulevard, and John Felix Valle, 10 North King's Highway.

BONDSMEN FOLLOW ON HEELS OF PRISONERS

Police Want to Find Out How Professionals Are So Quickly Informed of Arrests.

Police officials said today they intended to find out by what system men arrested and held for investigation are able to produce bondsmen, with fully approved bonds, before the cell door has hardly been shut on them. They cited an instance which occurred this morning, and which, they said, is a fair example.

Ernest Miller, known to the police as "Jew Bergadine," (Gus Covington and Raymond Rennard were arrested at 3:40 a. m. today, and taken to the North Market Street Police Station to be questioned in connection with the investigation into the theft of $12,000 worth of goods from the Peters Dry Goods Co., 2600 North Fourteenth street, Thursday night. Twenty minutes later, the police say, Adam Fisher, former saloonkeeper, of 1349A Warren street, appeared at the station with three bonds for $1500 each, with the prisoners' names filled in, and approved by Judge Chauncey Krueger of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Miracle—or What?

Judge Krueger resides at 2282 South Kings Highway and the police station is at 2409 North Tenth street. Chief of Detectives Hannegan declared it was absurd to suppose that Fisher could have gone from his home to Judge Krueger's house, aroused the Judge, had the bonds approved, and then returned to the station, all in 20 minutes.

He said that if professional bondsmen or friends of men suspected of crime are being allowed to carry in their pockets bonds signed and approved by Judges, the Police Department wants to know it. Judge Krueger did not telephone the police to find what the men were charged with, or why the police wanted them, Chief Hannegan said.

He pointed out that virtually no opportunity was afforded the police to make investigation, as the men were released almost before they were all locked up.

WARNING TAKEN TO "PEN" BY SHERIFF ELECTED WITH HIM

Former Treasurer of St. Clair County Begins Serving Sentence of Ten Years.

Fred Warning, former Treasurer of St. Clair County, departed today from Belleville for the Illinois Penitentiary, at Chester, to serve an indeterminate sentence of 1 to 10 years, for withholding $91,819 of public funds.

He was "taken down" by Chief Deputy Sheriff Logan Mellon, who was elected Sheriff in 1914 when Warning was elected Treasurer, after both had stumped the county together. They had been close personal friends for many years, and both are Republicans. Mellon did not put handcuffs on Warning, and as the two men walked together to the railroad station, residents remarked that it was a familiar sight.

Warning wept last night as he said goodbye to his 13-year-old son Willie through the barred door at the jail. Willie was the only member of his family to visit him, his wife being ill. Warning talked at length to his son, telling him to "be a good boy, and mind mamma."

It is possible for the former Treasurer to be paroled after serving 11 months. If not paroled, or pardoned, he must serve at least seven and a half years, which is the minimum term even with good behavior. If his conduct is not good he must serve 10 years.

RAY GLOBE-DEMOCRAT HEAD

Former Vice President Elected to Fill Place of C. H. McKee.

E. Lansing Ray, who has been vice president and general manager of the Globe-Democrat, yesterday was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles H. McKee.

Douglas B. Houser, secretary, was elected vice president, and W. C. Houser, treasurer, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Creel Has Not Resigned.

PARIS, Dec. 28.—George Creel, chairman of the Committee on Public Information, has returned to Paris from a trip to Verdun and the Argonne region. Edgar E. Sisson, his principal assistant, who accompanied him, stated that the report that Creel had resigned was untrue.

SLAIN WHEN PAIR TAKE UP QUARREL OF WIVES

Barltender is Shot in His Home With Own Pistol, Taken From Him by Roomer.

George Pfister, 46 years old, 1714 Chestnut street, a bartender, was shot and killed early today with his own revolver, which was taken from him by Joseph Miller, 40 years old, a cook rooming at the Pfister home, when the two men took up a quarrel begun earlier in the day by their wives. Pfister was killed after he fired a shot at Miller.

The Millers and Mrs. Miller's daughter, Cora Dennison, 18 years old, rented rooms in the Pfister home when they came from Herron, Ill., about two weeks ago. Yesterday Mrs. Pfister ordered the daughter to move from a first-floor to a third-floor attic room and Mrs. Miller engaged her in an argument. Mrs. Pfister slapped Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Miller retaliated with a blow with a broomstick.

When Miller came home, his wife told him that Mrs. Pfister had slapped her. Miller handed her a knife. "If she slaps you again, cut her head off," he said.

When Pfister came home, Mrs. Pfister told him what Miller had said. "I'll settle that," he replied and got a revolver. Mrs. Pfister tried to restrain him, but he took up a watch for the Millers, who had gone out. They returned at 12:15 a. m. and Pfister said to Miller: "You got that knife from your wife and put it away. I'll put this revolver away and we'll fight this out like men."

That started an argument and there was a struggle. A shot was heard. It apparently struck Miller in the head. He wrested the revolver from Pfister and fired five shots into his body. Pfister died an hour later on the operating table at the city hospital.

Miller and his wife ran out and were seen to board a car at Eighteenth and Chestnut streets. Miller bleeding in the head. He has not been arrested.

IDEAL guardians of the home!

Paris, Oct. 3.—A cable from America says that instead of turning swords into plowshares, the manufacturers are turning radiators into grenades and shells. Apartment and home dwellers earnestly hope that after the war the American Radiator Company will return to making boilers and radiators, which are equally hot stuff.

From The Stars and Stripes, Army Newspaper.

Iron was so greatly needed for munitions for Our Boys that we stopped pushing the sale and manufacture of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators. Now with the ending of the War, coal economy again becomes the most urgent need and duty of all.

AMERICAN & IDEAL With IDEAL-AMERICAN heating there is no need to burn high priced coal

IDEAL Boilers hold enough coal to last 24 hours. All IDEAL Boilers are or may be fitted with an ARCO Temperature Regulator which automatically controls the draft and check-dampers—giving you little to liberal amount of heat to suit quick weather changes. Stops all fuel waste and saves "minding the fire," poking, and the fussing that is the aggravation of old-fashioned heating devices.

Today's ideal bargain in heating

IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators free you from the ancient pests of hot-lifting, fire-poking, ash-sifting, coal-gas breathing, blackening, annual storing, repair bills, fire-risk, etc. In all the world they have no equal—hence their use in over a million stores, schools, churches, offices, public buildings, farm and city homes, old or new, at home and abroad. Money put into these outfits is an investment—not an expense. Accept no substitute! No higher than asked for ordinary makes. Fully guaranteed.

To secure 5700 winter hours yearly of IDEAL heating comfort and economy, and to guard your home forever, ask for book (free) "Ideal Heating." Phone your local dealer today for estimate. Put in quickly without tearing up or disturbing present heater until ready to start fire in the IDEAL.

REVIEWS OF NEW BOOKS

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE ST. LOUIS PUBLIC LIBRARY

OPEN-AIR THEATER—By Sheldon Cheney. One of the best recent books on open-air theaters, and outdoor pageants and dramas. The origin and development of the outdoor theater is shown from ancient to modern times.

HOW MOTION PICTURES ARE MADE—By Homer Croy. Interesting and instructive. Illustrated with many photographs.

WHITE NIGHTS AND OTHER STORIES—By Fyodor Dostoevsky. Contains seven of Dostoevsky's short stories translated from the Russian by Constance Garnet.

TALES FROM A DUGOUT—By Arthur Guy Empey. A group of battle-front sketches and stories by the author of "Over the Top."

HISTORIC SHRINES OF AMERICA—By John T. Paris. A profusely illustrated volume giving the story of 120 historic buildings and the pioneers who made them notable.

HOW TO PREVENT SICKNESS—By Dr. G. L. Howe. The author is medical director of the Eastman Kodak Co. The book is intended primarily for those who are exposed to infection of any kind or who are thrown in contact with people who are likely to carry disease.

THRIFT IN THE HOUSEHOLD—By Dora Merrell Hughes. A book of recipes for palatable, nourishing and economical meals, and advice about efficient management in all household matters.

THE BETROTHAL—By Maurice Maeterlinck. A fairy play, a sequel to the Blue Bird.

GREAT ADVENTURE—By Theodore Roosevelt. This volume of present day studies in American nationalism contains Col. Roosevelt's most recent expressions on the world war.

POET OF THE AIR—By Jack Morris Wright. These war letters of an 18-year-old American boy, who was killed in France soon after he had won his commission as First Lieutenant pilot-aviator in the American Aviation Corps, stand out as one of the most imaginative books of the war. They have in them the spirit of poetry, wonder and adventure.

"DAWSON BLACK, RETAIL MERCHANT"—By Harold Whitehead, author of "The Business Career of Peter Flint." (See Page 6.) Business romances are modern, but some are well worth reading. In this book Mr. Whitehead tells the story of a small merchant who was not a mere business machine, but a human being like the rest of us. So it is a story of life, not a mere business text book.

"SILVER LINING"—By "R. W. F." (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.). The experiences of a war bride. We still have war brides and other women with men they love in the European countries, and this little brochure will comfort those of them who read it.

"THE PAPER CAP"—By Amelia F. Burr. (Appleside). As Mrs. F. Burr explains in the preface, the four-cornered paper cap, whose origin is unknown, has for a century been a symbol of the factory workman. This is a story of labor and capital in England at the time of the Reform bill, when Mrs. Farr holds the paper cap first came into prominence. The aged author displays all her well-known ability as a story teller in this newest of her numerous romances.

It is a timely tale, just now, being concerned with the Lancashire cotton spinners, of whom 100,000 have recently gone on strike.

THE VALLEY OF DEMOCRACY—By Meredith Nicholson. The author, who is of the Middle West, has undertaken to analyze the people and activities of the Middle West. The chapters which compose the book appeared first as essays in Scribner's. In assembling them in the present volume, the author has either neglected or failed to amalgamate them into cohesiveness and the consequence is disjointedness, both in the chapter contents and the chapter connections.

As a serious study in a discursive style, on a subject of wide latitude, the author's efforts are entertaining and sometimes illuminating, but as an analysis of the group of essays lacks the philosophical element. The author is more of a lecturer and orator than a profound. One receives the impression over and over that the essays were prepared with a view to their utilization as chautauque lectures. There is a chapter on Chicago which is scattering and rattle. The effort to illustrate a work which does not lend itself to illustration has resulted in irrelevancy which is not mitigated by art. Still, and notwithstanding, one cannot journey through "The Valley of Democracy" without learning a good deal about the people and activities of the Middle West, and for such incremental acknowledgment is due. (Scribner's.)

THE HISTORICAL NIGHTS' ADVENTURE

RAFAEL SABATINI loves the combination of historic, picturesque and romantic. The mere lack of supporting facts to connect these three points does not stop him. He supplies details, just as he does conjunctions for sentences. The result is always entertaining and usually illuminative of some interesting point of history, buried in secret intrigue. Mr. Sabatini confessed to this defect when he wrote the plot for the sake of the story. In "The Historical Nights' Entertainment" he has collected 12 famous or notorious events as short stories and he depicts some famous mysteries. He writes of the murder of David Rizzio, of Darnley, and of the Duke of Granville, of the affair of Antonio Perez and Philip II, of Charles the Bold and Sapphira Darnley, of the escape from the Promeli and the assassination of Gustavus III of Sweden. A lively lot of tales, supported by history. (Lippincott.)

MRS. WHARTON'S WAR NOVEL

OUT of a mass of literature that has been published with the European war as background scenery, the trenches as a "close-up" thriller, and the soldier as the hero, or the nurse as the heroine, nothing has yet been put on the market so entertaining nor so well written as Edith Wharton's book, "The Marne." "The Marne" is what might be termed as a long short story. Its principal is an American boy who grows into near-madness during the life of the story, and whose sympathies are with France from the first day that hostilities are declared. The story has rightly been described as "a passionate epitome of the great struggle as it stretches between the two vital battles fought at that memorable river on the road to Paris." It is a whole epoch pictured in one short story, beautifully written and graphically told.

Troy Backman was born with the traits of a gold spoon in his aristocratic mouth in New York City. He is introduced to us on one of his annual voyages across to France—voyages that have been taken regularly each year with his mother—at the same day in the year was 6. The ship docks at Cherbourg, France; the motor is there; with the same chauffeur, the same route is taken and the same delightful French servants are met.

Troy's father comes over at the same time each year. Mother buys her frocks and has the same annoying time with the "fitters."

As Troy grows, his nurse is succeeded by a governess and then by a tutor. The traveling continues each year until he has a mental map of war-torn France as strongly visualized as the environs of New York.

Then the war comes. He and his mother have difficulty returning to America. His beloved French tutor was called to the front.

He is 18 now when we find him home for holidays from college. He is keen to help France and finally goes as an ambulance driver.

From then until the end of the reader's attention is held by the writer's every sentence. There is not a wasted word and the climax impressive. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

A MARTYR PEOPLE

THAT little Rumania has suffered real martyrdom in the war is not generally known. Her problem was a grave one, since her late King Carol (originally Karl) had a second understanding with Germany and Austria that in case of war he would aid the Rumanian troops to their fighting power, while the Rumanian people did not want to fight side by side with Austria, who was resulting Rumanians in Transylvania. The King died amidst the European war. The new King, who is also of Hohenzollern origin, conquered his own heart, or he might have lost the throne, and entered the war on the side of the allies. While really unprepared, he entered the war in the hope that Russia's promises of help would be fulfilled. But no help came, and Rumania was crushed by a powerful enemy.

It is a sad story of valor and suffering which is being told by Mrs. Will Gordon in "Rumania Yesterday and Today." But the finest part of the book are the chapters written by Queen Marie, who is of English descent, and who died amidst the European war. The King died amidst the European war. The new King, who is also of Hohenzollern origin, conquered his own heart, or he might have lost the throne, and entered the war on the side of the allies. While really unprepared, he entered the war in the hope that Russia's promises of help would be fulfilled. But no help came, and Rumania was crushed by a powerful enemy.

It is too bad that the rest of the book was not written by a person who had experienced conditions better than those of the Rumanians. Mrs. Gordon. She seems to glorify every anti-Semitic attitude of the point of view of the Jew haters and Jew baiters as to the Jews in Rumania. There are other reasons which go to show that the book is "inspired" but not in the way poets would interpret this word.

Every Rumanian word or phrase, without a single exception, used in the book is misapplied. Identically the author does not know Rumanian and what is worse, is not aware of her ignorance of the language, else she would have had some one acquainted with the Rumanian tongue read the proofs.

Since there are so very few books about Rumania in English, it is too bad that the book could not have been made really worth while. (John Lane.)

A DRESSMAKING MANUAL

"THE DRESS YOU WEAR AND HOW TO MAKE IT"—By Mary Jane Rhoe. A handy little book of practical hints for working girls, business women and housewives with moderate incomes, on making dresses. It appears to include everything, from patterns to the various stitches and buttonholes, shrinking, pressing, combing colors, tucking, plating, etc. There are a number of helpful illustrations and diagrams and a glossary of dressmaker's terms. (Putnam's.)

ENGLAND'S WOMEN

THE brilliant Rebecca West, the statistical Beatrice Webb, and nine other women, each a specialist in her respective field, have combined in producing a pamphlet entitled "The Women and the War Party," which B. W. Huebsch publishes this month. Arthur Henderson, whose chances of some day becoming a Labor Premier are good, writes the introduction. The special interest of this manifesto—manifestation proclamation, as it were—is in the fact that English women are now about to exercise direct political power for the first time. The American women who aspire to the franchise and those who have just gained it (as well as the ladies who oppose enfranchisement) may profit by the document.

"REMARKABLE CRIMINALS."

HENRY B. IRVING, son of the late actor and himself an actor of note as well as a successful author, has presented in "A Book of Remarkable Criminals," a series of extraordinary interest. The style of criticism that will occur to everyone, however, is that too much attention is paid to the case of Charles Peace, an English murderer and thief. Peace was a double, perhaps, a triple murderer, and some of his escapades as a thief were unusual, but, after all, there was nothing subtle about him, nor was his personality surrounded with that air of mystery that is essential to the fascination of a criminal character. He was simply a brute, a brute who stood out from the crowd as a criminal. He was simply a brute, a brute who stood out from the crowd as a criminal. The style of criticism that will occur to everyone, however, is that too much attention is paid to the case of Charles Peace, an English murderer and thief. Peace was a double, perhaps, a triple murderer, and some of his escapades as a thief were unusual, but, after all, there was nothing subtle about him, nor was his personality surrounded with that air of mystery that is essential to the fascination of a criminal character. ## PRESIDENT WILSON BECOMES 62 TODAY

Interesting to Compare Him by Age With Allied Statesmen and Great Figures in History.

President Wilson is 62 years old today. This calls attention to the fact that the President is about the average age of those with whom he will cooperate in settling the immediate future of the principal nations of the earth. Premier Clemenceau is considerably older, and Premier Lloyd George is several years younger.

It may be interesting in this connection to note the ages at which other men who have played great parts in the world's affairs have made their most important decisions and accomplished the greatest successes. It will be seen that President Wilson is considerably over the age at which most of his greater predecessors have been at the pinnacle of their careers.

At 27, the age at which Napoleon had swept the Austrian armies from Northern Italy, and was organizing a new republic there, Mr. Wilson was practicing law in Atlanta, Ga., a profession in which his success was such that he quit it after a year. At 32 years, the period at which Caesar began to loom up as a rival of the great Pompey and Crassus, Prof. Wilson was associate teacher of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr, a girls' school.

Wilson a Professor at 33. Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence when he was 33. At that age Prof. Wilson had just taken the chair of professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton University, where he had gone from Wesleyan University.

Roosevelt had become President by McKinley's death, when Mr. Wilson was made president of Princeton. He was almost 46 then, the age at which Oliver Cromwell won the battle of Naseby, and at which Napoleon already had lost Waterloo.

He was 57 when he was elected President, the age at which Washington was first elected, and at which Jefferson was inaugurated. Thus, he was 60 when war on Germany was declared, an age at which Caesar, Napoleon and Alexander the Great were dead.

Premier Clemenceau of France is one of the remarkable men of the world in the matter of age. He is 77, and is serving his second term as Premier, the first having been in 1909. At an age when most men have retired to the sidelines, he is one of the most vigorous men in public life; indeed, virility and vitality of thought and speech are the very traits which distinguish him.

Lloyd George is 55, Premier Lloyd George is one of the "youngsters" in the great arena, being but 55, although he is two years older than King George. Baron Serrano, Italian Foreign Minister, is 70, and, like Clemenceau, has had a long period of public service. Marshal Foch is 67.

Julius Caesar, who, despite his undoubted personal ambition and the fact that he proposed a hereditary monarchy for Rome, was one of the great advocates of freedom and practical democracy, was born in the year 100 B. C., and actively entered public life when he was 26 years old. He was 42 when he began his famous campaigns in Gaul, that finally resulted in the carrying of Roman successes even into Britain. Pompey was routed, and Caesar was appointed dictator and consul when he was 43. Three years later he received the title of "Father of His Country," and Imperator, which was followed a year later by his assassination.

Caesarian Reforms. At this time he had proposed vast reforms, the curbing of social evils, the preparation of a digest of the law for the public use, the establishment of public libraries, and many other democratic programs, most of which were prevented by his death.

And the progress of freedom and civilization thereby greatly retarded. Caesar's fiery, vigorous and almost turbulent nature was utterly unlike President Wilson's calmness and placidity of temperament, although both combined the gifts of statesmen, orators and writers.

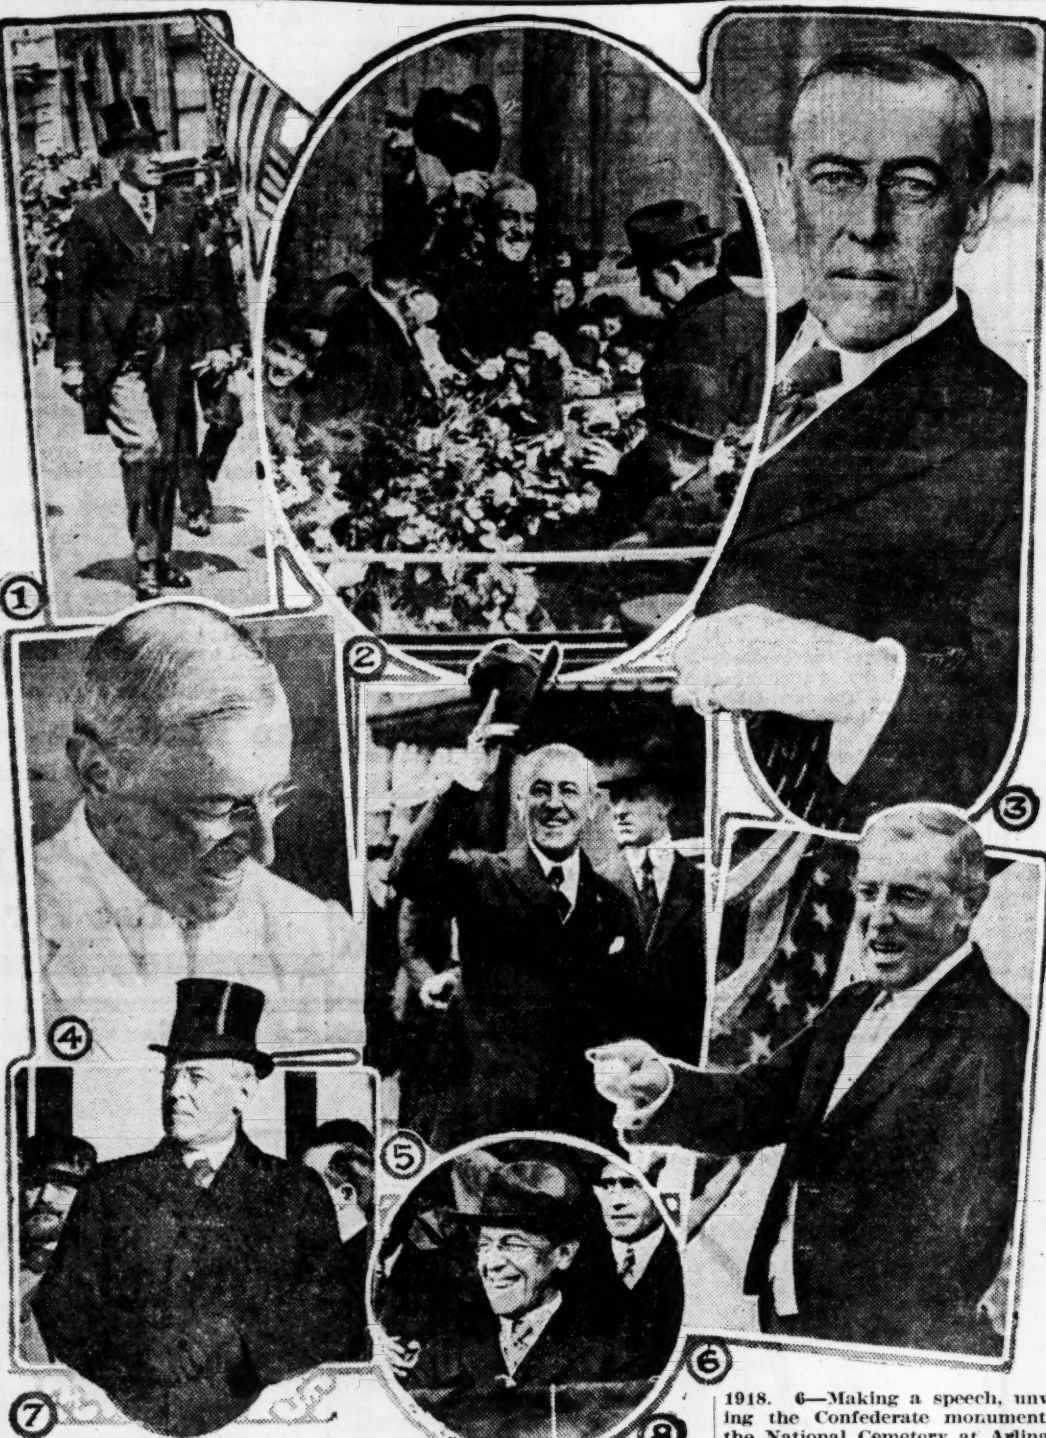

The theory of the divine right of Kings, which, with the passing of Wilhelm, doubtless goes out of the world forever; probably received its rudest jolt when Oliver Cromwell, confronted with the lesser barrier that no court could try the King, roughly cried: "I tell you, we will cut off his head with his crown on it!" and proceeded to do so.

Cromwell was then 50 years old. Like the President, Cromwell did not become a great factor in affairs until comparatively late in life. He was 42 years old when his military career began with the command of a troop of horse, and was 46 at the battle of Naseby, which resulted in his coming into leadership of the army. He died when he was 59.

Napoleon's Meteoric Life. Napoleon, who probably was the most tremendous single energy in history, took command of the French army of Italy when he was 26 years old, and won the battle of the Bridge of Lodi two months later. He became Consul and the most dominating figure in the world at the age of 30. He won the battle of Austerlitz at 35, but was beaten at Leipzig eight years later, and was exiled to Elba at the age of 45. Less than a year later he returned from Elba, "retook an empire by force of his genius," but lost Waterloo after the "100 days," shortly before he was 48. He died in exile on the island of St. Helena when 61, at which age Mr. Wilson was presiding over Princeton University.

George Washington, who made modern democracy possible, and who served as the first President of the first great modern republic, was made a member of Gen. Braddock's staff when 23 years old. He became Commander in Chief of the Continental army when 43. At the age of 49, hampered by a vacillating and unreliable Congress, he won the battle of Yorktown, with French aid, and could probably have established a limited monarchy, with himself as King, had he so chosen.

He retired to private life, however, and was unanimously elected President when 57 years old, going out of office when 64, and dying shortly after his sixty-eighth anniversary.

Lincoln and McKinley. Abraham Lincoln, who expressed the political ideals held by a vast majority of Americans today, was 35 years old when elected to Congress. He engaged in the famous debates with Douglas when 49, and was elected President when 51. He was 53 when he issued the Emancipation Proclamation, and almost 55 when he made the immortal speech at Gettysburg. He was the same age at which Caesar met death, and like that great statesman, was thus prevented from carrying out his vast plans for reorganization.

William McKinley, President during our last war before this, who was President Wilson, carried out his policies in the face of determined opposition, was 55 when the victory over Spain was achieved, having been elected President two years earlier.

Shakespeare was about 37 when he wrote "Hamlet." Dante was about 65 when "The Inferno" was completed, and Milton was 55 when he finished "Paradise Lost."

William Hohenzollern, former Kaiser, will be 58 next month.

92 FOREIGN ADDRESSES AMONG 920 CASUALTIES

Italy, Greece, Ireland, Scandinavia and Enemy Countries Represented.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Of the 920 names in today's official casualty list, exactly 10 per cent, or 92 men, have foreign addresses. As the addresses given are those of the next of kin, this means, in most cases, that the men were natives of the countries named, and had wives, parents or other near relatives living in those countries at the time when they entered the service.

Italy, Greece, Ireland, Denmark, France, Finland, Sweden, England, Canada, Poland, Russia, Serbia, Brazil, Norway and the island of Cyprus are represented in the table of addresses, and there are several names from Germany and Austria. The total of army casualties listed to date is 199,042, and those of the Marine Corps 5088, making 204,130 for both branches.

Missouri and Illinois names, omitting those from St. Louis and Chicago and the adjoining communities, are:

HIGHWAYMEN OVERLOOK PISTOL

After Being Robbed, Vincent Sullivan Takes Shot at Them.

Two armed robbers, who held up and searched Vincent Sullivan, 5605 Chamberlain avenue, on Clara avenue near Bartmer avenue, at 10 o'clock last night, overlooked a pistol he carried, and as they left him he emptied it in their direction. He told police he did not believe any of his bullets took effect.

The highwaymen took $10, a cigar cutter and a watch from Sullivan. He told police he had carried the revolver anticipating just such an emergency, but says he did not have time to get it out of his pocket before he was made to throw up his hands. He is a brother of Lieut. Frank Sullivan, who is overseas with the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry.

Disapproval of a request of the St. Louis Driving Club that it be permitted to construct a racetrack in Forest Park was expressed yesterday by Park Commissioner Cunliff, who pointed out that the ground desired for the track now is occupied by five baseball diamonds and that there is no other tract to which they could be removed.

I heat and butter individual egg shirrels, put in a piece of buttered toast, cover with the oysters, and sprinkle with salt, pepper, and a teaspoonful of AI Sauce. I bake all this in a hot oven and until the edges ruffle, and garnish with coast points and lemon. It's really no bother at all. It's the AI Sauce that does the trick. ## PERSHING ISSUES RULES TO GERMANS IN OCCUPIED AREA

Registration of All Persons Over 12 Ordered; Meetings Prohibited; Arms Ordered Given Up.

PURPOSE IS ONLY TO PRESERVE ORDER

Travel and Communication Restricted; Sale of Wine Barred; Warning Against Hampering Soldiers.

By the Associated Press. COBLENZ, Friday, Dec. 27.—Gen. Pershing, commander of the American armies here, gave Germans within the area occupied by Americans further cause today for realizing they are a conquered people. After a three weeks' display of leniency as great or greater than that shown by their own military officials, the American commander promulgated rules of conduct "for the guidance of inhabitants."

Strict obedience to the rules was enjoined by Gen. Pershing. The regulations are modeled after those made by the French, although less drastic. They provide for the registration of everyone above the age of 12 years, regulate travel in and out of the occupied zone, limit drinking to light wines and beer and impose censorship on the press, theaters and mails.

Aim Only to Keep Order.
Except for minor and specific regulations, the Americans have not interfered in local affairs until today. Cafes have been open and theaters filled. Newspapers until recently have published without restraint such articles as they desired, while crowds promenade the streets until midnight and even later. The Germans had come to believe that such conditions would continue, and while there were no serious incidents as a result of the tolerant rule of the Americans, it was deemed best to check any tendency toward abuse.

The regulations, published today were signed by Gen. James W. McAndrews, chief of staff, "by command of Gen. Pershing."

In drafting them an effort was made to avoid the inclusion of any rules which would merely humiliate the population, or which savored of retaliation or revenge. They are intended simply to maintain good order.

Weapons Ordered Surrendered.
Under the terms of the regulations the authorities will know the exact whereabouts of every individual, for each must carry an identification card and give notices of changes of habitation. Householders must keep posted on their doors a list of the residents of their buildings with their ages, nationality and occupations. All weapons and ammunition must be surrendered. The gathering of crowds is forbidden and no meetings except courts, schools, councils and religious services will be allowed without permission.

Text of Proclamation.
The text of the proclamation follows: "Every person above the age of 12 must carry at all times an identification card bearing his signature and address. Notification of change of address must be immediately made to the appropriate civil official and indorsed by him on the identification card. The head of each household must keep posted on the outer door of the building a list showing the name, nationality, sex, age and occupation of every member of the household."

Circulation will be controlled by the American authorities. The burgomaster, under the direction of the American authorities, will regulate travel within the district occupied by Americans and he will be held responsible for strict compliance with all regulations. Authority to leave the American zone will be granted only by a division or higher commander.

Sale of Wines Forbidden.
The carrying of arms or deadly weapons is forbidden except by the local police. Every person in possession of arms or ammunition of any kind must deliver them to the American authorities at such time or place as may be appointed. A receipt for such weapon will be given at the time of delivery.

"The sale or gift of all alcoholic drinks except light wine and beer is forbidden. Alcohol for medicinal or industrial purposes does not come within this prohibition. The sale or gift of light wine and beer is prohibited except from 11 o'clock a. m. to 2 o'clock p. m. and from 5 o'clock p. m. to 9 o'clock p. m. These orders respecting drinks render the offender liable, in addition to other punishment, to confiscation of his stock and the closing of his business."

HERE is a picture of Lieut. Thomas Henry Landsberg, St. Louisan, taken with Capt. "Hobey" Baker, Princeton football star, who lost his life in action while commanding the 141st Aero Squadron in France, of which Lieut. Landsberg is a member.

Lieut. Landsberg and Capt. Baker were close friends. The picture was taken in the Toul sector, where they were in training. Before joining the American air service a year and a half ago, Landsberg was an automobile salesman. He is 32 years old and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Landsberg, 5548 Delmar boulevard.

A copy of each newspaper or other publication will be delivered to the local military commander upon issue and the appearance of any matter reflecting upon or injurious to the American military government will render the publication liable to suspension or suppression. Excepting the periodical press, no printed matter will be published without permission from the local military authorities.

Mail to Be Censored.
"Mail is subject to censorship by the American military authorities. The use of the telegraph and the long distance telephone is forbidden except by permission from the local military commander. The use of aerial wireless apparatus is forbidden and all private telephone or telegraphic apparatus, ground or aerial wireless apparatus must be reported to the military commander at once. No person may, without authority from the local military commander, transmit any message or communication to any person outside the territory occupied by American troops except through the postoffice."

Special Rules.
"Special rules—Whoever attacks, disturbs or impedes any American troops, or officer or soldier thereof, or destroys, damages or disturbs any railway, telegraph or telephone installation, any lighting or water power system, or any part thereof, or who destroys, damages, steals or secretes any property of or in possession of the American army; or purchases, receives in pawn or has in his possession articles of clothing, equipment or ration furnished to American soldiers or belonging to American armies; or destroys, damages, pollutes or secretes any fodder, water or other things useful to the American army; or acts as a spy or commits acts of war or treason against the American army; or commits any act whatever injurious to the American army or in obstruction of the military government, or in violation of these regulations or orders hereafter by American military authorities; or refuses to comply with a requisition; or attempts to do any of the foregoing things, or advises or assists anyone else to do or attempt to do any of them, will be punished as a military court may direct."

Miscellaneous.—The term civil authorities used in the regulations means the burgomaster or head of the local community. All applications for permits or passes must be made in writing to the local American military authorities through the civil authorities. Every person must familiarize himself with these regulations and all others hereafter made by the American military authorities. No person may, without authority, ignore these regulations. Willful violation. In case of doubt as to the requirements of these regulations, inquiries should be made at the city hall."

ALLIES COMPLETE INSPECTION OF GERMAN BASES

British Battleship at Home Port After Trip on Which Many Evasions of Truce Terms Were Found.

DISCIPLINE ON ENEMY SHIPS VERY LOW

People in Interior Well Clothed; Scores of Undeclared New U-Boats Discovered; Air Stations Visited.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Friday, Dec. 27.—Bearing an allied commission which inspected German naval bases and airship and seaplane stations under the terms of the armistice, the British battleship Hercules has returned to her home port. During a trip fraught with peril, many German ports were visited and preliminary arrangements for the surrender of German warships made.

A dramatic episode of the voyage was the passage of the Kiel Canal on Dec. 18. Accompanied by the British destroyers Verdun and Viceroy, the Hercules gave the Germans along the banks of the canal their first sight of the British flag since 1914, when light British cruisers passed through. Germans who watched the ships were, for the most part, indifferently curious, but not infrequently women and children waved their hands. There was not the slightest response from the ships.

Conditions in Interior.
Discipline on board the German warships is very low, according to officers of the Hercules. They found on the first enemy ships boarded sailors lounging about the ships in bad condition as a result of neglect. This was in direct violation of the terms of the armistice, and drastic action was taken by the inspecting officer. He notified the Germans that the ships must be cleared of sailors and if orders were not obeyed he would return to the Hercules and report that he was obstructed in his work. Fearful of probable consequences, the German seamen left their ships at once.

Inspection of airships and seaplane stations required considerable land travel, which permitted the members of the commission to gain information as to the condition of the people in the interior of the country. It is reported that the German people are well clothed and fed as are the people of France and England. Winter crops, owing to the mild season, are doing well, and the land is well cultivated and fertilized.

Many Evasions Found.
Admiral Sir Montagu Browning, head of the commission, was accompanied by the best men from all allied nations available for the work. They met interminable objections, obstructions and evasions by the Germans, but the commission ultimately was able to induce the Germans to find means to fulfill many points of the armistice which they at first flatly refused to carry out.

Admiral Goette of the German navy seems to be the only senior German officer still attending to his duties. Admiral von Scheer and Admiral von Ripper apparently have disappeared into the same obscurity which hides Gen. Ludendorff and other former leaders who have sought safety in "retirement." A notable member of the German commission was Capt. von Muller of the first Emden, to whom the British press paid tribute at the time his ship was sunk, because of "sportsmanship." Unfortunately the identity of Capt. von Muller was not definitely known to the allied command until after the final conference at Kiel was over.

More U-Boats Found.
Discipline on airship and seaplane stations was better than on the German warships. It is reported that the Norderny seaplane station is said to compare most favorably with any station of its kind in France and England, while the great Nordholz Zeppelin depot is declared to be the finest in the world. It was from here that virtually all German raiders bound for England started. One interesting sight was the famous "L-14" Zeppelin shed, which was successfully bombed by airplanes last summer. At that time two sheds and two Zeppelins were destroyed.

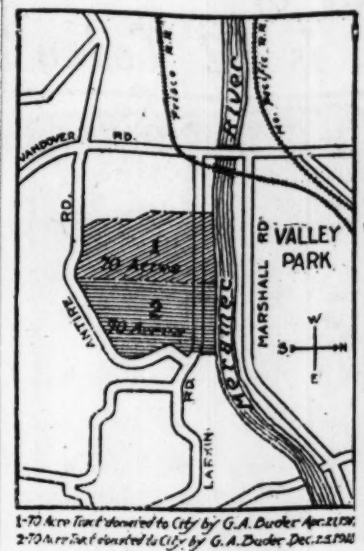

At Warnemunde, where a great experimental station was established by the Germans, the Allied commission met with difficulty when it asked permission to carry out the work of inspection. It was only under protest that the members were permitted to enter, the Germans fearing revelations of what they had accomplished.

The submarine commission under Lieutenant-Commander Bower pushed its investigations assiduously at Hamburg, Bremen and other points, with the result that scores of U-boats, nearly all near completion and hitherto undetected by the Germans, were found and reported.

Admiral Goette protested to the last against giving up these submarines, but at a final conference consented.

SEVENTY ACRES ON MERAMEC GIVEN TO CITY FOR PARK

G. A. Buder, Who Donated Large Tract Last Year, Makes Present of Adjoining Land.

A gift of 70 acres on the Meramec River near Valley Park was made to the city yesterday by G. A. Buder, 3137 Longfellow boulevard, president of the American Press, which publishes the St. Louis Times and the Westliche Post, who desires that it be used in connection with an adjoining 70-acre tract which he gave to the city last Christmas as an outing resort, especially for children. The two tracts have a frontage of about three-fourths of a mile on the river and extend back from the river about the same distance.

Park Commissioner Cunliff has prepared plans for the improvement of the land as a vacation resort for persons of moderate means. The plans include the erection of cottages and canoe houses and the construction of a bathing beach and athletic fields. Comptroller Nolte remarked yesterday that the city now is ready to receive a gift of money to carry out the plans. Mayor Kiel estimated that the 70 acres donated to the city yesterday is worth $14,000.

BURGLARIES IN FIVE HOMES

A burglar in the home of Mrs. Minnie Knollman, 2247 Sullivan avenue, in her absence yesterday, took a $50 Liberty Bond and jewelry valued at $150 from a shelf in the pantry but overlooked $142.50 cash hidden in a cream pitcher on the same shelf.

Other burglaries reported were the tailor shop and home of Bernard Schiele, 2210 North Fifteenth street, $500 worth of cloth; home of Louis Wright, 3411 West Florissant avenue, $175 in jewelry; home of Mrs. Marie Smith, 4514 Delmar avenue, jewelry worth $100, and home of Mrs. Edna Kraft, 1319 Dolman street, jewelry worth $200.

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. It attacks all classes, regardless of age, sex or conditions. A majority of the ill-afflicted people today can be traced back to the kidneys. The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of the blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim. Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, depression, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gait stony, gravel, rheumatism, scottica and lumbago. All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL HAZELIM OIL CAPSULES IMMEDIATELY. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL HAZELIM OIL CAPSULES. In twenty-four hours you should feel better and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL HAZELIM OIL.

RID YOUR SYSTEM OF RHEUMATISM

BY ELIMINATING THE CAUSE.

Medical Science says Rheumatism is a constitutional disease, produced by an excess of lactic acid in the system, caused by exposure to cold and dampness. COL-LAC-SAL TABLETS are scientifically prepared to reduce the excess of lactic acid and if taken one tablet three times a day, will relieve pain immediately and eliminate the cause. COL-LAC-SAL TABLETS can be purchased at any drug store. (Insist on COL-LAC-SAL TABLETS and accept no substitute.)

Expert Advice.

ONCE engaged board and lodging at the house of a retired New England sea captain," says a New York artist, "and from him I received some sincere advice. 'One day, while I was busy painting, I became aware that the captain was standing behind me, gazing at the canvas over my shoulder. 'How do you like it?' I asked. 'Now, it chanced that the captain's house had been without an artist boarder for several years and that I was the first follower of the impressionist school it had ever harbored. 'The old seadog gazed thoughtfully at the lower right corner of the canvas, where I had thrown a mass of parti-colored splashes and blotches. 'You're kinder young,' said the captain, kindly. 'This is your first summer outdoors at it?' 'Yes. 'Well, now, see here,' resumed the captain. 'There's two or three old palettes up in our shed chamber. You go get one of those and try out your paints on that instead of on your picture. You'll have to lose that whole corner of your canvas. I'll bet you, and it'll make your picture considerably smaller. I wouldn't do that again if I was you.'—Harper's Magazine.

Our Old Friend Bluff.

AN Indianapolis man, who for the purpose of this story will be called Mr. X, asked a friend, Mr. Y, for the loan of $20. Mr. Y, replied that he did not have the money with him, but would return with it later. When he came back to Mr. X's office he found Mr. X busily engaged in an apparent effort to make a favorable impression on a visitor unknown to Mr. Y. 'Here is that $20,' said Y, breaking in on the conversation. Mr. X turned as though annoyed by the interruption. Then his face brightened with a patronizing smile. 'Thanks, old fellow,' he said. 'Any time I can do anything more for you let me know.' Mr. Y, the lender, retreated in confusion.—Indianapolis News.

B. N. EDMONDSON, St. Louis ticket agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, tells this story that happened only the other day: 'A Chinaman just from San Francisco and with a bag of gold came into our office to buy a ticket for New York. I waited on him, gave a timetable with the ticket and directions as to how to get to Union Station. The Chinaman was gone for about a half hour when back he came. 'What's the matter, John?' I asked. 'Are you lost?' 'No,' the Chinaman replied. 'Me no lost—diam depot lost!'

A Problem of the Future.

'GOOD morning, children,' said the arithmetic teacher. 'How many of you have prepared an original problem in multiplication, as I requested?' Only one hand went up. 'Well, William, may you give your problem and the rest of the class may solve it.' 'If my baby sister is a year old now and weighs 26 pounds, and keeps on gaining two ounces a day until she is 16 years old, and if the price of living doubles again in the next 10 years, how much will my sister's graduation outfit cost? ## VIVID PEN PICTURE OF THE SURRENDER OF GERMAN FLEET AS SEEN FROM BATTLESHIP TEXAS

What Happened When 13 German Dreadnoughts and Battle Cruisers, Six Light Cruisers and 49 Destroyers, With Numerous Submarines, Were Meekly Turned Over to the Allies Without Firing a Shot.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. TEXAS, FIRTH OF FORTH, Nov. 21, 1918.

ON this bewildering day when the German Hoch See Flotte was surrendered to the allied navies, I am not going to write of the naval pageantry of it all, of great gray ships of war steaming in battle array, of the mammoth "hush" ship and frail torpedo boats clipping the waters, of submarines proudly moored beside their parent craft. It was just like any naval maneuvers—or better still, it resembled the funeral voyage at sea of some exalted personage. Not a siren heard, not a whistle blown.

No. What gripped today was the shattering human psychology of it all. It has been a day of astounding humiliation.

I think the curtain really rose on this final act of sea war about the beginning of this present month. One day Beatty, in his flagship, Queen Elizabeth ("Big Lizzie," or "Q. E."), assembled his ship's company aft.

"Men," he said in that abrupt, incisive way of his, hitting his phrases at lightning speed, and emitting his "a's" and "the's," "men, they're coming out at last. I always said they would. No stances! Do your jobs, each one of you!"

And the Admiral turned away to his cabin. A week later the Commander in Chief repeated this summons and advice. Two or three days ago he once again, for the last time, called Queen Elizabeth to attention.

"Men," he said, "I've always told you they'd come out on a piece of string."

And abruptly he walked away with features drawn in disgust and bitter disappointment. The fleet agreed.

Next day Admiral von Meurer came over on the Königsberg to arrange the carrying out of the armistice. Beatty, robbed of his Trafalgar, preserved throughout an attitude of bitter disdain. At the cabin conference Meurer would now and then break into broken English, addressing himself directly to the British Admiral. Entirely ignoring the German, Beatty, would turn to his interpreter with a "What does the Admiral say?"

On one such occasion Meurer broke out, "Admiral, we were driven to this; we were coming out a fortnight ago. The men refused. You must know that there is no child left in Germany under 5 years of age. They are all dying."

What the Soviet Demanded.

Beatty exhibited about as much interest in the child life of Germany as he might be expected to in the status quo in Peru. Whereupon Meurer went on, this time via the interpreter: "We are anxious to get those ships over here at the earliest possible moment. Beatty's eyes opened in disbelief. Meurer continued: "And we want you to take full crews on them, not reduced personnel as stipulated. The navy breeds the worst Bolsheviks, and we haven't enough food for them if we take them back home. Keep all here!"

Beatty sternly observed: "Tell the Admiral that we will abide by the armistice terms." Meurer next produced a document in German capitals and drawn up by the Kiel Naval Soviet of Workmen and Sailors and the rest. It read:

I, the undersigned, guarantee that all German crews, either of submarine or surface craft, proceeding to England for internment will be immune from all ill treatment.

At the bottom a space was left for Beatty to sign. Instead, the British Admiral took the document, tore it in half, threw it on the floor, and said: "Tell him they're coming to England. That's all there is to it!"

I have given these two broadsides of Beatty's because they typify absolutely the attitude of the Grand Fleet toward the late enemy. icy courtesy, granite firmness, incredulity, contempt. There has never been any naval surrender in history like this. Spaniards, French, Russians—all came out, in similar circumstances of certain doom, and fought their ships to the end. They might have fought these ships, they might have scuttled them, a few brave souls at least might have put up a death-or-glory "show" in the waters of the North Sea. But no. "There's no use in it. It won't help us. So don't let's do it!" they may have argued.

British and American seamen felt as if their own profession was being held up to ignominy and they themselves indirectly compromised.

Admiral Beatty's Orders.

Admiral Beatty had taken over command of the German fleet before it left Kiel on its final voyage. By wireless he ordered the German Admiralty this way and that, and the enemy obeyed. I have seen all that wireless. Take an example.

"Admiral commanding Grand Fleet to cruiser Königsberg: You will stop using your wireless till further orders."

"German Admiralty, to Admiral Beatty: Regret one submarine of latest batch to sail for Harwich has not her torpedoes aboard as stipulated."

Reply from Beatty: "You will send on the missing torpedoes by the next transport."

Again, after the Germans had reported the sinking of a U-boat on its way across to internment, Beatty wireless back: "You will forward a full report of the sinking, as it appears that same was avoidable."

When a destroyer sank on the way across Beatty signaled: "You will forward a vessel of the latest type in place of sunken U-93."

Occasionally the Germans sent out a wireless about mine fields. Beatty would direct them on a clear course. Once they were a couple of hours behind time at a rendezvous. Beatty wanted to know the reason why. "We are sailing around one of our own mine fields," was the answer.

"That's all right," signals back the British Admiral. "We swept that field up long ago."

Was there ever such humiliation?

"Want to know exactly how many officers and men are coming in each ship," says Beatty. "You will report this by 9 a. m. tomorrow."

"For a whole week this wonderful wireless drama went on across the waters of the North Sea. How Marconi has recast human intercourse! One might say, figuratively speaking, that not a man went to bed that week at Kiel without Beatty's permission."

I went aboard the Texas on the afternoon of the 19th. The five United States battleships forming the Sixth Battle Squadron of the Grand Fleet, New York, Texas, Arkansas, Wyoming and Florida, clearly distinguishable from all other dreadnoughts by their lattice masts, lay in the Firth of Forth, very nearly under the giant bridge spanning that waterway. As far as the eye could see in every direction there were dotted warships, while in and out coursed pinaces and launches. Arrived at the top of the accommodation ladder the executive officer led me to the Admiral's cabin—there being now no Admiral aboard.

"Make yourself comfy and then come right along to the wardroom. We're having a sort of a hop." I expected to find a score of officers, British and American, "bunny-bugging" to a piano. Instead I came upon a score of pretty English women, officers' wives and daughters, fox-trotting with British and American officers to the strains of a jazz band. In one corner lay spread out the most ravishing pre-war tea of cream and sugar and butter and white bread and delightful cakes and dainties.

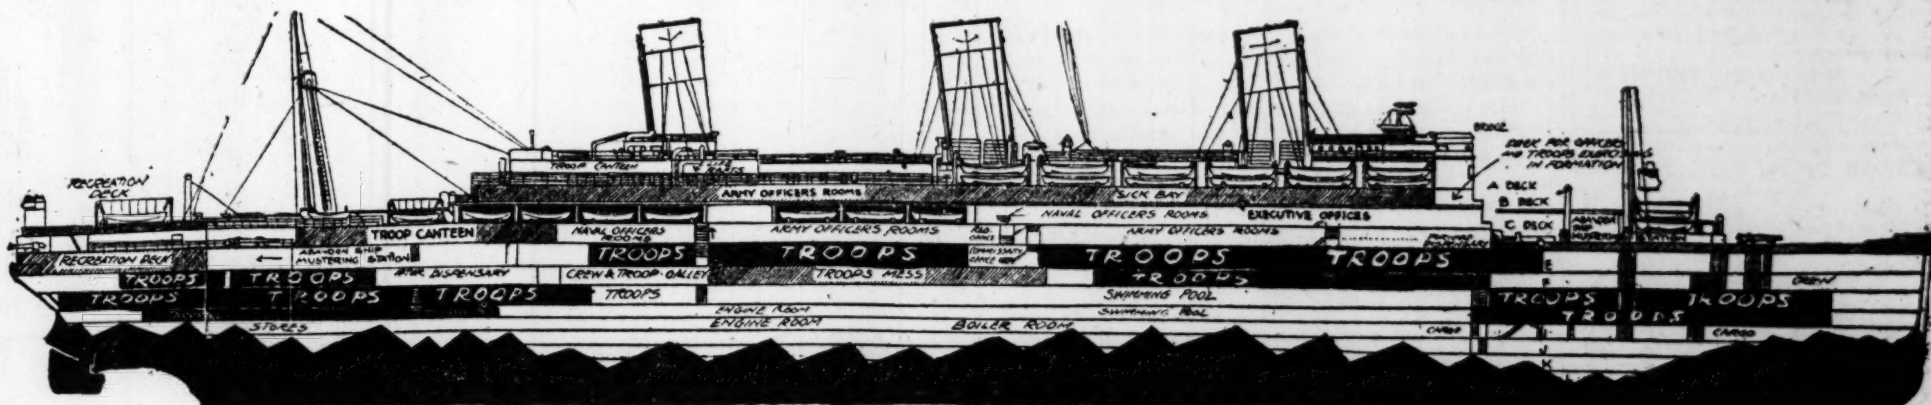

German Cortege 20 Miles Long.

And so we trotted to jazz for the rest of the evening, on the Texas, while the Germans, in one winding cortege 20 miles long, were mournfully finding their way toward us, now guided clear of British mine fields by wireless, now hesitating at mine fields of their own long since swept up by us. The Duke of Richmond's ball at Brussels the night before Waterloo was nothing to this. One lived each moment of each minute. The dramatic note was apt to be intense. What were those Germans doing, saying, thinking, out in the North Sea that night as we toasted "Der Tag" at dinner, and then re-

500 Women's Suits and Coats

Will Be the Feature Monday of
Our After-Christmas Sale

At an Extremely Low Price

$29.00

WE desire to impress upon you that these garments are worth a great deal more than the special price we are quoting. Our policy of not mentioning comparative prices prevents our stating the amount that you will save. We assure you, however, that you will be most enthusiastic with this offering.

These are unusually high-class Suits and Coats—made up of most desirable materials, including wool velours, pomoms, serges, checks, kerseys and novelty materials, in black, navy and the desired shades of brown, taupe, Burgundy and green.

All sizes, for the small woman as well as the large woman.

The Coats are either half-lined or fully lined. Many of them trimmed with large fur collars. All finely tailored, excellent garments from every point of view.

Sale begins Monday at 9 o'clock.

GALLI-CURCI COMING IN CONCERT THIS WEEK

Coloratura Star's Versatile Program for Odeon on Saturday Night.

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, stellar coloratura singer, will make her third St. Louis visit in a recital next Saturday night at the Odeon. This is her second concert here, her first appearance having been in the opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor." Local audiences have admired her flawless vocal technique, her brilliant ease in the most formidable difficulties of execution, her sweetness of tone, her charming personality. She has been winning new successes this season as a member of the Chicago Opera Association.

Her program for Saturday night is versatile in range, extending from simple old English songs to such a tour de force as the Mad Scene from Thomas' "Hamlet." The numbers promised are as follows:

Buy a Diamond on credit and acquire the habit of saving. Lottis Bros. & Co., 23 N. 3rd St., 6th & 7th.

PEN PICTURE OF THE SURRENDER OF GERMAN FLEET

up any moment now. There's about 5000 yards visibility," says Capt. Victor Blue, scanning the horizon. A strong morning sun was finally overcoming the raw northern mist. We all looked eagerly seaward.

"German high sea fleet to starboard," sang the lookout "man," a little American boy, absurdly youthful, and all trusted up in Peary kit.

"Right ho, sonny," answers the Captain, leveling his glasses, "keep directions on the leading battle cruiser."

And so, silhouetted against the light golden haze, Germany found her place in the sun. It was 9:21 a. m., Nov. 21, 20 miles east of May Island, that the American battle squadron joined issue in the naval capitulation of Germany. As the enemy hove in sight, in stately line ahead, and keeping perfect station and alignment, we saw that a kite balloon towed by the Cardiff was so poised as to be directly above the leading German battle cruiser. And so it remained, lest the German

What U. S. Ships Did.

It fell to the United States ships to escort back the Bayern, Grosser Kurfuerst, Kronprinz Wilhelm and Markgraf. The Germans had been told to keep their guns trained fore and aft. They followed Beatty's instructions correctly throughout.

"I like to bet the whole lot of 'em out of the water," commented the British Admiral as his vessel, the Lion, drew level with the Derfflinger—the very vessel she had fought at Jutland. Through glasses Germans now looked at British and British at Germans, less than two miles separating the ships. In the gun turrets the men cursed and stamped their feet as they saw sail under their noses the very vessels they had chased and searched for and studied and never for a moment had out of their minds, night and day, for four terrible years of strain.

"It's a wonder no British gun went off by accident!" In the turrets the black silhouettes of each type of German warship had been painted up. We compared them with the originals before us. Officers and men discussed technicalities intently.

"See that mast camouflage on the Hindenburg?" Foremast higher than the mainmast? Gives the impression at a distance that she's going away when she's really coming toward you."

"Much harder to pick up than we were taught," Low on the water. Some of 'em look fine ships. Out of repair, though."

Meanwhile flagship talked to flagship—they were 20 in all at sea, not counting the Friedrich der Grosse. The German ship flew for the last time, as Beatty subsequently decreed, the Imperial ensign from the mainmast, white with a black cross. A white flag had been hoisted on the flagship. The decks of the surrendering ships were almost deserted. For 10 miles and out of sight the gray line of Germany's fleet ex-man destroyers were being shepherded in groups, no ceremonial took place, nor were compliments of any kind paid.

Durned Yellow of Them.

I asked one or two of the crew of the Texas what they thought about it?

"Durned yellow of them to come out like this without a scrap," and they went on skipping and singing rag tunes, these American boys, while the Hoch See Flotte, sailed on in shame, a few cable lengths away. I suppose the Germans were peering out of port-holes at us just as fixly as we were scanning theirs, but certainly had an extraordinary good view of the Grand Fleet. All around them, east and west, south, north.

At midday Beatty signaled: "The Imperial German ensign will be lowered at sunset today, and will be hoisted again without my permission."

That was, I think, his victory signal, the nearest approach to Nelson's famous signal, "England expects."

Soon after the Queen Elizabeth dropped out of the line, anchored and passed the German fleet critically in review. As each vessel of the Grand Fleet drew level with the flagship, the ship's crew gave three hearty cheers for Beatty, who responded by waving his hand from the bridge. Meanwhile, on the other side of the flagship the Germans were sailing on, on, on, in silence.

Bolsheviks Controlled Fleet.

And so we came to anchor once more in the waters of the Firth of Forth. Bands broke into national airs on board each ship, and there followed, at Beatty's behest, a religious service in the darkness "for the victory that Almighty God had this day vouchsafed our arms." In the meantime inspection parties had already boarded the German vessels in Largo Bay to see that they had only brought a limited crew, plenty of provisions and coal and no ammunition—all as stipulated. The Germans tried to fraternize, their every question was relentlessly met by the stolid answer: "I don't know."

On board, owing to the presence of Bolsheviks, the position was an extraordinary one. The German crews lounged about, smoking, eating and spitting in front of their officers. They obeyed British officers!

"Order these men out of this cabin," said a British officer to a German Captain, pointing to a group of Soviet sailors sporting their distinctive white armbands.

"Order them!" sobbed the German at his desk, his head on his hands.

"Order them!" they'd take no notice. I've been a prisoner in my cabin all the way across—like all the other officers."

The British officer took in the situation at a glance, faced the Soviet sailors, and in fierce, rasping German ordered: "Achtung!"

The Germans drew themselves to attention.

"Unkehren!"

The Germans turned about, facing the cabin exit.

"Ein, zwei, drei—vorwaerts!"

"They mutinied," explained the German officer, "because they heard your Grand Fleet was going to go in for Bolshevism, too."

Greatest Victory in History.

Bolshevism in the Great Fleet! Red flags on the British and American dreadnoughts—I wonder how much the British admiralty intelligence had to do with circulating in Kiel and Cuxhaven those tales of British fleet Bolshevism! One never knows.

Saying good-by to the Texas, I turned to Capt. Blue.

"Your ship's company, sir, would, I gather, have preferred a fight."

"Well, I wouldn't. This has been the most signal victory in naval history, and I'd much prefer to bring my boys home to their mothers and sweethearts than leave them at the bottom of the North Sea."

If the German sailors imagined they were on a joy ride to these shores they are by now vastly disillusioned men. Three-quarters of them are to be sent back in German transports whence they came, the other quarter are going to spend a frozen winter of internment up in the Orkneys at Scapa, the most desolate, uninhabited, icy region of the British Isles. In due course they,

Freight Elevator Death an Accident.

A verdict of accident was returned yesterday by a Coroner's jury investigating the death of Julius Kupersmidt, 63 years old, of 3256 North Twentieth street, who was crushed in a freight elevator Thursday at the Krey Packing Co.'s plant, Twenty-first street and Bremen avenue, where he was employed. Testimony was that he slipped when leaving the elevator at the second floor and was caught between the floor of the car and the framework of the shaft.

INFLUENZA CASES DROP TO 28, ALL RESTRICTIONS OFF

Health Department Finds Situation So Improved That It Is "Not Justified in Restraining Public Any Longer."

DEATHS FOR WEEK CLOSE TO NORMAL

Mayor's Emergency Proclamation to Remain as Measure of Precaution—Public Schools to Reopen Thursday.

Children yesterday attended picture shows in St. Louis the first time since Oct. 7, the Health Department having removed all restrictions pertaining to public gatherings and the movements of children that were in force as a preventive of the spread of influenza.

When the day's report was completed yesterday and showed only 28 new cases in 24 hours, Assistant Health Commissioner Jordan said: "The figures are so good that I am not justified in restraining the public any longer." And St. Louisans became again free to go and come as they pleased, for the first time since Oct. 7, when Mayor Kiel declared an emergency to exist and the Health Department began imposing regulations, which at one time closed all but essential business in the city for four days.

Schools Reopen Thursday. Schools will reopen next Thursday, the regulations having forbidden children under 16 to attend school, and those under 12 to enter picture shows or go into stores except in the forenoon. Large public gatherings, which could be held only upon permit, now may be scheduled without anyone's permission.

Influenza, which may be regarded as having ended here as far as its general prevalence is concerned, caused 2004 deaths in St. Louis in 12 weeks. Pneumonia, which is closely allied with it, has caused 906 additional deaths. The number of persons reported to the Health Department in that period as having influenza was 21,693.

The presence of the disease caused the number of deaths from all causes since Oct. 7 to be more than double the number during a like period last year. The number for this year was 5214, compared to 2352 for last year.

Dr. Jordan said that he would request Mayor Kiel not to withdraw his proclamation declaring an emergency, so that if influenza should reappear alarmingly, the Health Department would have retained its authority to again impose safeguards. He further warned owners of picture shows to be careful of sanitation and ventilation, for, he said, if regulations should again be imposed, the picture shows would be first to be affected.

A resume of figures for last week, prepared yesterday by the Health Department, shows how greatly influenza has receded. There were 261 new cases reported during the week, compared with 868 the week before. The number of deaths from influenza, including seven between 5 p. m. Friday and yesterday noon, was 84, compared with 218 for the week before. The pneumonia deaths fell from 84 to 65. The deaths from all causes was 299, compared with 230 during the same week last year.

"SANTA CLAUS HAS NOT FORGOTTEN ME!"—was the joyous exclamation heard in thousands of homes throughout St. Louis this year and all because the great big-hearted people of this city with worldly goods, found it "more blessed to give than to receive" and contributed to the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund. If you are one of these wonderful people, but your list has not been sent in because of its being incomplete, won't you please have it completed and delivered to the Post-Dispatch Office by Jan. 17.

KIEL THREATENS MOVE WHICH WOULD CUT OFF MENNE'S PAY

Mayor Kiel said yesterday that if City Treasurer Menne persists in refusing to surrender the office to John W. Dunn, who was elected City Treasurer at the last election by a majority of 20,000, he will have City Collector Dunn introduce a bill in the Board of Aldermen creating the office of City Chamberlain and appoint Dunn to fill it.

The effect, the Mayor says, would be to deprive Menne of salary except the minimum of $1500 allowed by the State law. He would have to give a bond which would cost him $600 to $700 and would have to provide his own office.

Menne is holding on to the office on the claim that Dunn is disqualified by the fact that he was Deputy City Collector at the time of the election. The claim is based on a statute of 1865, which is claimed to disqualify the Collector and his deputies from being elected. Treasurer while holding the other office. Dunn, a Republican, has been given his certificate of election by the Secretary of State and the Election Board. The salary is $5,000 a year.

WARNING, WHO TOOK $91,819 OF COUNTY FUNDS, GOES TO PRISON

Bids His 13-Year-Old Son a Tearful Good-Bye Through Bars Admonishing Him to "Mind Mammy."

Fred Warning, former Treasurer of St. Clair County, Ill., who pleaded guilty Thursday to withholding $91,819 of public funds, was taken to the Illinois Penitentiary at Joliet yesterday by Chief Deputy Sheriff Logan Mellon, who was elected Sheriff on the same ticket with Warning in 1914. They had been friends for many years, and as they walked to the railroad station in Belleville yesterday, residents remarked that it was a familiar sight.

Warning was visited Friday night by William, his 13-year-old son, whom he told good-bye through the barred door of the jail, weeping as he admonished his son to "be a good boy, and mind mammy." Warning may be released on parole after serving 11 months. Unless paroled or pardoned, he must serve at least seven and a half years. The maximum term is 10 years.

JUDGE ADVOCATE BISHOP, 76,
CELEBRATES DAY AT HIS DESK

Friends Who Congratulated Jurist Asked to Keep His Age a Secret.

Orrick Bishop, who was 76 years old yesterday, celebrated the anniversary by reporting at the usual hour at his desk as Judge Advocate of the Police Department.

To friends who called up on the telephone to congratulate him, Bishop appealed in mock dismay to keep the secret of his age. He has practiced law in this State for half a century, and was the first Judge of the St. Louis Juvenile Court. Later he was appointed Circuit Judge by Gov. Folk. His chief distinctions have been won in the office of Assistant Circuit Attorney. He directed the prosecution in the famous Maxwell and Duestrow murder cases, winning capital sentences in both; and he was the right-hand man of Folk, then Circuit Attorney, in the boodle prosecutions.

Bishop is envied among lawyers for his library, and it is an open secret among his friends that he has spent a considerable part of his income in the purchase of legal volumes, of which he has one of the most complete collections in Missouri. PART THE GIANT
SHIP, LEVIATHAN,
PLAYED IN WAR

merous stories to the effect that she had exchanged many shots with pursuing U-boats.

One attack in July of this year was carried out by a fleet of at least six U-boats, and the Leviathan's officers believe, was planned after the German commanders had received accurate information as to the big transport's movements.

In this fight one submarine was sighted by the Leviathan and sunk by a rain of explosive shells from her battery of eight six-inch guns. Two of these rifles are perched on the fo'castle head, two in the forward well deck, two in the after well deck and two on the poop.

The submarine in the July attack was seen to sink, the Leviathan's officers say, her back broken by explosions and her bow and stern pointed skyward. The transport's convoy drove off the other raiders and sank at least one of them.

The Leviathan gets no credit for sinking a submarine, as no prisoner or body or piece of wreckage was picked up. This is required by the Government before official credit is given for the sinking.

In the wardroom I asked a Lieutenant not long from Annapolis for his impressions. "You ask me what we officers think of it? Why, just that!" And he pointed to a little blackboard hanging on the wall opposite and marked "4 hours." "We want to see that during that time taken down, and as soon as we get these fellows interned at Scapa it will be taken down. For 10 months, since the American battle squadron arrived here, we've been kept at four hours' notice to proceed to sea. You won't appreciate just what that means. It means we've been tied to this ship by both feet and arms at that time. It'll be a different word when that little blackboard comes down. Get me?"

In this encounter the giant troopship employed for the first time in the history of naval warfare a system of defense that was "made in America." It consists of a submarine barrage laid down by an American invention known as a Y gun. The Leviathan has two of these, one mounted in the stern and the other in the bow. From each end of the Y is hurled a depth bomb containing 350 pounds of TNT, the most deadly explosive known. The bombs drop into the water at a distance of 200 yards on each side of the vessel and explode at a depth of 75 feet.

Equipped With "Submarine Barrage"

When both of the Leviathan's Y guns are working the ship is completely encircled with a submarine barrage that would, according to her gunners, destroy any U-boat in the vicinity or at least start her seams leaking and force her to come to the surface. This barrage would divert or cause the premature explosion of any torpedo, the Leviathan's officers say. They declare that the Y gun proved the most effective cure for U-boat attacks of any weapon invented during the war. The big transport carried 35 naval gunners.

The amount of food carried aboard by the Leviathan since the United States entered the war is so monumental that her officers have given up trying to keep track of the total figures.

Commander Blackburne told the writer today that it was impossible to give figures that would even approximate the total amount of food taken to France and England by the big ship.

"We have figured that in a single trip we have carried enough food to supply 13,000 people for three months," said Commander Blackburne. "That would mean that in her 10 voyages across the Atlantic the Leviathan has transported sufficient food to supply a city of 130,000 people for three months."

On every one of her trips the Leviathan left this port with food jammed into every conceivable space that wasn't occupied by a doughboy. Having been designed for carrying passengers, the Leviathan has little space for cargo. Her registered cargo-carrying capacity is only 3000 tons. However, she has the most spacious stowage quarters of any ship afloat, and this was packed solid with foodstuffs on every voyage.

The ship has six great "chilled rooms," which were designed for the transportation of imported German beers to this country. These were turned to valuable account when she became an American transport. They accommodated thousands of tons of perishable food.

Carried 11,000 With No Crowding.

Although more than 11,000 troops were carried by the Leviathan in a single voyage, there was no crowding, no confusion, no emergency man had his own bunk. There was no doubling up except at meal times, when the doughboys were fed in three relays.

When the soldiers go aboard the ship they are handed small printed booklets with complete instructions covering everything required of them during the voyage. The soldier's life on the ship has been so thoroughly systematized that it has been possible for the ship's 95 cooks, 28 bakers and 17 stewards to feed 11,500 men in just 70 minutes. This is the Leviathan's record, and her officers are proud of it. It never takes more than two hours to feed 10,000 men on the transport.

No one who knew the Vindicator as she was in 1914 would recognize the interior of the Leviathan today. Most of the beautiful cabins have been taken away to make room for tiers upon tiers of steel bunks for soldiers. An illustration of this can be seen in what was once the ship's second class cabin. Here one small section of staterooms has been removed and the space now accommodates 5000 troops.

What was once the grand salon and ballroom is now the hospital or sick bay with 145 beds, two operating rooms and a bacteriological laboratory. The main dining room, with its beautiful pillars and decorations, is now the main troop mess hall. The former ladies' lounge is now a restroom for the ship's officers. What was once the Ritz-Carlton restaurant is now the mess hall for army and navy officers and any first-class civilian passengers who happen to be aboard. It is also used in the evening for showing moving pictures. The old smoking room, with its almost priceless wood carvings, is now an assembly room for officers. Chaplain Eugene A. McDonald holds religious services there on Sundays.

What was the main hall and grand stairway has now been decked over and is being used as an isolation ward for contagious cases. The huge entrance hall on the main deck is now a diet kitchen and sleeping quarters for sentries. The famous Pompeian bath, with its 60-foot swimming pool, is now used for baggage and mail.

All the ship's luxurious fittings have been removed and are stowed away in one of the former Hamburg-American Line piers.

It wouldn't be right to close this story without mentioning one officer who is as proud of the ship's record as though she had never been German. He is Lieutenant-Commander Jean Metayer, French navy, who is the vessel's French pilot.

If Count William Hohenloer reads this record of his former mar-time pet it ought to provide him with much food for melancholic retrospection. It might bring before him a gaunt and filmy apparition of the departed Albert Ballin, whose dream of Germanic supremacy of the seven seas made this story possible.

A STUBBORN COUGH LOOSENS RIGHT UP

This Home-Made Remedy Is a Wonder for Quick Results. Easily and Cheaply Made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HOW 400 LOCOMOTIVES WENT TO PERSHING

They Were Made Ready for Rails and Then Packed in Hay.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The shipment of American-built steam locomotives weighing each 73 tons and assembled all but the smokestack and the tender so that they could move away under their own steam within a few hours after their arrival in France was among the accomplishments of the United States army transport force under stress of war and has since been continued.

More than 400 of these locomotives were so shipped from New York in a few months, it was learned here with the lifting of the war censorship regulations, and these were in addition to 1200 which were shipped in sections—nine to a locomotive—packed in cases. The ships used to transport the locomotives complete were of a special type with three holds, each hold measuring 60 by 102 feet, entered by hatches 39 feet wide and 42 feet long.

Into each of the three holds was placed 12 locomotives—36 to a ship. For a bed or flooring on which they rested for the voyage was used more than 3000 tons of steel rails. The locomotives when in position were braced with heavy wooden beams, and the space between the boilers to the level of the top of the steam dome packed solid with highly compressed baled hay.

Packing the Parts.

On this hay another flooring was laid, and on this floor was placed the tenders—the smokestack, with more baled hay or other light cargo, packed in the space where coal is to be carried. On top of the tenders was packed still more cargo to the deck level, and during the "rush days" the above deck space filled with crated airplanes. When completely loaded with the 36 locomotives and other cargo, each vessel was carrying a dead weight of 14,000 tons in addition to ship machinery, bunker coal and crew supplies.

The loading of the locomotives was an interesting sight. Steel railroad barges, carrying 14 of the steel monsters, were made fast alongside a 100-ton capacity floating derrick barge, in turn made fast to the ship. An ordinary sling of steel wire was placed around the forward end of the boiler, another under the supports to the cab, the signal given and the locomotive lifted 40 to 50 feet in the air, swung over and gently lowered into the ship's hold. The whole operation required but 20 minutes, and it was accomplished with the same ease and with the same lack of excitement as prevailed on a steamer at an adjoining dock which was taking on board 500-pound bales of cotton.

The idea of shipping locomotives complete was conceived when army transport officers were informed that England was shipping them across the channel ready to move away on arrival.

England Did It, Too.

"If England can do it, so can America," an officer said, and he straightway commandeered a fleet of ore-carrying vessels which were constructed with hatches large enough to permit the handling of such freight.

When the movement was at its height, the following time was recorded for the movement of a locomotive from its builders to its base of action behind the battle lines: Ships to New Jersey terminals, 24 hours; from rail to barges, six hours; from terminals to ship side, six hours; barge to ship, 20 minutes; New York to France, nine days; ship to army rail lines and hooked to a transport train bound for the front, six hours; a total of less than 12 days.

Handling of 73-ton locomotives as if they were but one-tenth of their weight is only a small part of the tremendous work that has been under way at army transport piers since the United States transport service attained full swing.

Maj. Dan O'Brien, marine director, an officer who has won his rank by more than 20 years' service in the United States, Mexico, Cuba, Mexico and the Philippines, where transport facilities of the army were centered, is the man who handled the locomotives.

LEADER OF JAPANESE POLITICAL PARTY SUGGESTS PEACE POLICY

Admission to U. S. Rather Than Territory Should Be Sought and Spirit of Liberty Pondered, Says He.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 28.—Japan's attitude at the peace conference should be one of disinterestedness as far as territorial gain is concerned, in the opinion of T. Inukai, the leader of the Kokuminto political party. The statesman said the other day that Japan's actions hitherto have been liable to misunderstanding as possibly actuated by territorial ambition, and Japan should seize the first opportunity to disabuse the world of any misapprehension.

At the same time Inukai thought it desirable that the United States and other countries should freely open their doors for the admission of aliens, thus bringing up again a question which in the past has caused considerable negotiations between the United States and Japan.

With the world's tendency toward forming republics it would be necessary, he said, for the Japanese to ponder carefully over the future of their own country. Japan could prohibit the import of foreign books, but she could not prevent the influx of foreign ideas, dangerous or otherwise.

LONGER SCHOOL DAY, BEGINNING THURSDAY

Reopening After Lifting of Influenza Ban—First Term to End Jan. 24.
 When the public schools open next Thursday, influenza bans having been removed by the Health Department yesterday, the school day will be lengthened 25 minutes to make up lost time, the new hours being 8:45 a. m. to noon and 1:10 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.
 Teachers are instructed to devote all of the last week of the present term to teaching. The first half year will end as usual on Jan. 24, graduations in the grade schools being the last Friday in the term, and exercises so simple as to require minimum preparation. Graduation exercises in the high schools will be in the evenings of the first week of the second half year.
 The evening elementary schools will reopen on Thursday also, but the evening high schools will not reopen until Friday.
Night School Plans.
 Influenza has so affected the enrollment of night schools that pupils from the fourth to eighth grade will be required to write, as an exercise of penmanship, two copies of a notice announcing the resumption of instruction in night schools. The notices will be distributed among all pupils, with the request that they be taken home for the perusal of parents and older brothers and sisters.
 The new night terms will be for 20 weeks, with instruction three nights a week. About 1500 placards announcing the reopening have been mailed to employers and parents. The study of the Portuguese language, together with matters pertaining to trade with Brazil and other South American countries, have been added to the curriculum. Physical training classes for men and women also will be organized.
Changes in Schedules.
 Principals in the vicinity of Franklin and Adams schools have been instructed to alter their night school notices so as to read that the Adams evening school will be conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, and the Franklin on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights. The Sumner and Banneker night schools for negroes will be open on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.
 The high school and four grammar schools in Wellston will reopen tomorrow with longer hours, 8:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.
 The University City schools, which have been closed since Nov. 29, will reopen tomorrow.
 Clearance prices on Diamonds, Watches.

ONLY MINOR CASUALTIES IN SHORT LIST FOR TODAY
 Names of 763 Slightly Wounded Bring Total to Date Up to 204,893.
 By the Associated Press. Dec. 28.—Only minor casualties are recorded in the official list issued tonight, which is a short one as compared with those of recent days, and contains the names of 763 army men wounded slightly. No dead, missing or severely wounded are in the list. It is known, however, that some deaths are still to be listed. The total of listed casualties is now 204,893, of which 189,805 are in the army and 2088 in the Marine Corps.
 Names in today's list from Missouri and Illinois, outside of St. Louis and Chicago, and the adjoining communities are:

FOR CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

Many people who have considered themselves incurable after spending hundreds of dollars, on Specialists, Baths, Baking Processes, etc., and who have experimented with other remedies, have at length found relief from the tortures of rheumatism by taking Prescription A-2851—a Time Tested Remedy free from opiates or narcotic drugs.
 Mr. C., a Preacher and Master Mason, suffered from rheumatism in a very aggravated form. He took Prescription A-2851, and says: "It has done a wonderful lot of good. It has stopped all pains and rheumatic troubles, and I am up and going everywhere. I have gained 12 lbs. of flesh. I am highly pleased with the results."
 Prescription A-2851 has been successfully used for 54 years. EIMER & AMEND, Third Ave., 18th to 19th Sts., New York. —ADV.

Cold, Cough and Catarrh Medicine for Young and Old.
 You buy it of any well stocked druggist in 2 1/2-oz. bottles and take it in ten-drop doses, or better yet, mix it with simple sugar syrup, made by dissolving 1/4 of a pound of granulated sugar in a half-pint of boiling water. It is so easy to make a whole pint of cold and cough syrup that tens of thousands of mothers make it every year for their loved ones.
 All agree that this home-made cough syrup is free from harmful drugs, and that only a few doses are required for each case, so that a pint may last a family throughout the winter season.
 For colds, catarrh, cough, and bronchitis there is nothing superior for prompt, lasting relief. Guaranteed by 'The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, to please or money back.—ADV.
